LUCKENBACH AT SAN JUAN.

Steamer Arrives Safely with All Her Passengers on Board.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—Steamer S. V. Luckenbach, which caught fire while bound from New York for San Juan, Porto Rico, several days ago, arrived safely at San Juan last night with all her passengers on board, according to a cable despatch received here today. It had been reported by wireless that some of the passengers had been transferred to steamer Philadelphia while the Luckenbach was on fire at sea, but this report was denied today.

FIRE STILL BURNING IN HOLD.

Luckenbach Passengers Congratulate Captain and Crew on Bravery.

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Oct. 30.—Steamer S. V. Luckenbach, from New York for San Juan, arrived here last night with the fire in her hold still burning. All her 31 passengers and crew are well. Steamer Philadelphia of the Red D line, which sighted the Luckenbach soon after the fire broke out October 26, and acted as a convoy, came into port with the Luckenbach. The cause of the fire is not known, as it was impossible to gain access to the hold.

The passengers adopted a set of resolutions congratulating Captain McLean and his crew upon their brave conduct.

BATTLESHIPS DROP ANCHOR AT AMOY.

People, Affronted, Apathetic Concerning Arrival.

Americans' Visit of Far-Reaching Importance to China.

AMOY, China, Oct. 30.—The Chinese people were apathetic regarding the arrival here today of the Second squadron of the United States Atlantic fleet, only a few natives turning out to witness the arrival of the battleships, comprising, as they do, the greatest naval force which ever entered this port. Only 100 Chinese guests will be admitted to the grounds on which the celebrations planned for the reception of the Americans will be held, and the restrictions will be enforced, and the precautions taken to exclude the Chinese from participation in the celebration is the cause of the apathy shown.

The 16 ships of the fleet left Yokohama together Sunday morning, but divided into two squadrons when two days out. The First, under command of Rear Admiral Sperry on flagship Connecticut, heading for Gonguna, Philippine Islands, and the Second, under Rear Admiral Emery, on the Louisiana, bound for Amoy. The two squadrons will join forces again at Manila, the Second division being scheduled to leave Amoy November 4 and arrive at Manila November 7.

The fleet appeared off Tatien Island at 6:30 o'clock this morning, having been met ten miles out at sea by Chinese torpedo gunboat Fei-Ying, which escorted the ships to their anchorage. The ships dropped their anchors at 9:30 o'clock, while the forts on shore and the flagship of the Chinese squadron, the Hai-Chi, fired the customary salutes, which were replied to by the American ships.

To China the visit of the Americans is of far-reaching importance, and every preparation had been made not only to extend to the representatives of the United States a flattering welcome but to impress upon them China's desire for even more cordial relations with the republic than have heretofore prevailed. Chinamen of exalted rank will take part in the festivities.

China is struggling to preserve the territorial integrity of Mongolia and Manchuria from the encroachments of Russia and Japan, and the presence of the American battleships at Amoy is welcome to the Pekin government, because of the interpretation that China has chosen to give to this friendly act—that the United States is inclined to support her in her contentions with her neighbors—an interpretation that is not recognized officially, but is of China's own making, the desire in the case being father to the thought.

ASKED TO STAND TRUE.

Gompers Urges Labor Organizations to Redoubled Activity.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, today announced that he was sending out for distribution among union labor people throughout the country a special issue of the American Federationist, containing articles dealing largely with the political campaign. Mr. Gompers today also sent telegrams to every labor organization in the country, urging his followers "to redoubled activity and clearness," and to "stand true to the great cause of human freedom involved in this campaign."

CAPE COD BEARS BRUNT OF GALE.

Strongest Steamers Forced to Run for Shelter.

Coast Storm Welcome, in Spite of Its Boisterousness.

BOSTON, Oct. 30.—The southeast coast storm, with its well-filled reservoir, was a welcome visitor to New England today, despite its boisterousness, and its distribution of rain over an area extending from 50 to 60 miles inland was beneficial.

Up to 8 o'clock this morning 1.34 inches of rain had fallen in this city since yesterday afternoon—not quite as heavy as during the disturbance earlier in the week—while the wind reached 54 miles an hour during the early hours. Block Island had 1.42 inches of rain and a 44-mile-an-hour gale. On Cape Cod the rainfall was probably considerably heavier, but there are no recording instruments there, while the communication with Nantucket had not been established at the usual time. Farther east the fall was not so heavy, while in the interior it was very light, only a trace being reported from Northfield, Vt.

Cape Cod bore the brunt of the gale, and even the strongest and fastest steamers could not face its fury, and were forced to run for shelter under the protecting arm of Monomoy point. Up to 10 o'clock the only marine accidents reported were the driving ashore of a fisherman, the Joseph Cromwell, on the breakwater in Provincetown harbor, usually a safe anchorage, and the plight of an unknown coaster off Nauset light, about half way down Cape Cod.

NO INSTRUMENTAL MUSIC.

Voices of Fifty Priests Chant During Boston Requiem Mass.

BOSTON, Oct. 30.—The chanting of a solemn pontifical requiem mass for the repose of the souls of the deceased bishops, priests and people of the archdiocese was the feature of today's program of the five days' observance of the centenary of the founding of the Boston archdiocese of the Roman Catholic Church. The mass was sung without instrumental music, a choir of 50 voices, composed of priests of the diocese, chanting under the leadership of Rev. M. J. Scanlan.

Archbishop O'Connell presided over a meeting of the Clergy's Aid Society during the forenoon.

FLAMES SUBDUED BY RAIN.

Danger from Forest Fires Near Skinner, Me., Thought to Be Over.

LOWELLTOWN, Me., Oct. 30.—Forest fires, which have caused considerable damage to timber in the vicinity of the village of Skinner during the past week, have been effectually subdued by the rains of the past few days, and, with the indications pointing to a continuance of the rainfall, it is believed that all danger is over.

SPEAKER HAD NO POWER.

Cannon Did Not Prevent House from Considering Littlefield Bill.

DANVILLE, Ill., Oct. 30.—Speaker Cannon today, at the request of Bishop F. M. Bristol, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, addressed him an open letter in answer to the question put to the Speaker, "Did the Speaker prevent the House from taking a vote on the Littlefield bill?"

Mr. Cannon, in his letter, said: "I did not prevent the House from considering the Littlefield bill or voting upon it, and I will add that I had no power to prevent the House from doing either, for, as Mr. Littlefield says in his letter to me, dated September 12, there are no rules, there is no committee on rules, and there is no Speaker, that can prevent a majority of the House from taking up any measure and acting upon it at any time."

GUILD MUCH BETTER.

Doctors' Visits Over, and Governor May Be at State House Monday.

BOSTON, Oct. 30.—The condition of Governor Guild, who was stricken yesterday with gastritis, showed a notable improvement today, according to a statement issued from the executive department. It was also stated that the governor was so much better that his physicians merely communicated with the house by telephone, and will not see him again unless his condition shows a change. It is expected that he will be at the state house Monday.

SHIPPING AT STANDSTILL.

Heaviest Storm Since Last Winter Prevails on Cape Cod.

HIGHLAND LIGHT, Mass., Oct. 30.—The heaviest storm since last winter prevailed here at dawn today, with the wind blowing at a 75-mile-an-hour gait, a terrific surf thundering along shore, and the air over Cape Cod filled with flying rain and sand. For the second time within a year the tall pole of the government wireless station here collapsed in the gale. Shipping ceased late yesterday afternoon, and up to 9 o'clock today no vessel had doubled the cape.

ST. MARTHA'S GUILD SUPPER.

Red dahlias in profusion were used exclusively as decorations for the supper of the Emmanuel parish house Thursday evening, and nothing could have been more fitting or produced greater harmony with the warm red of the walls, with their green trimmings. The scene was a pretty one, as one entered the brilliantly lighted rooms from the rain outside. Five tables were used for serving the supper, and both the supper and the service were excellent. People were there in such numbers that, inasmuch as the members of St. Martha's Guild had provided there was not enough to serve late comers, and a number were disappointed.

A graphophone, dancing and jigsaw puzzles were used for the entertainment of those who desired to remain during the evening.

RESPONSIBLE FOR "DUMMY" LOANS.

Morse Did Not Know They Were Not Reported.

Told Curtis to Get Good Collateral on Heinze Exchange.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—This was expected, from the point of view of the spectators at least, to be the most important day in the trial of Charles W. Morse and A. B. Curtis, who are charged with violation of the national banking laws in connection with the conduct of the National Bank of North America. Mr. Morse took the stand in his own behalf yesterday, and when court adjourned last night his story was well under way. In his examination yesterday there was comparatively little said about the Ice company, save from a reference to certain blocks of stocks which figured in the affairs of the bank, and no reference at all was made to the great combination of coastwise steamship lines which Mr. Morse drew together under one head, only to see the whole structure crumble in the panic a year ago.

Mr. Morse went on the stand to continue his testimony when the trial was resumed today. He said he accepted the full responsibility for the so-called "dummy" loans made in the name of Leslie B. Whiting, a 19-year-old office boy. The loans were made by Mr. Curtis and Mr. Wire, as officials of the National Bank of North America, said Mr. Morse, but in making them they had acted at his request. If the loans were not reported to the comptroller of the currency, however, the act of omission was without his knowledge or request.

Coming to the loan made by Wesley M. Oler, president of the American Ice Company, on 1,000 shares of ice stock, Mr. Morse said that when he informed Oler that he would permit him to make a loan he appeared to be immensely pleased. "He repeatedly thanked me," said Mr. Morse, "even to the extent of saying that his wife and children would remember me in their prayers. He told me I had put him on his feet and given him a chance no one else ever had given him."

When his attention was called to the testimony of Oler in the present trial to the effect that he had tipped Morse to sell the 1,000 shares of ice when the stock was selling at 90, but that Morse had refused to sell, saying that it would go to 110, Morse said: "If he had wanted to sell that ice at 90 he could have done so. It was his own stock, and not mine. I never refused to sell it. The statement is wrong."

Mr. Morse then told of the various properties the American Ice Company owned, of the water rights, permitting ice to be cut at various places, and the actual investments in outfits, etc., the company owned in New York, Baltimore and other cities. He said he was thoroughly familiar with the ice company's property.

"What did you consider the stock of the ice company really and actually worth?" he asked.

"I thought it worth fully par, and that its earning capacity was easily 8 per cent," he replied.

Morse said that behind the loans he had guaranteed between October 1, 1906, and April 15, 1907, he had 6,050 shares of ice. When it came to the withdrawal of the 3,000 shares of ice and substitution of 3,500 shares of Copper against one of the loans Mr. Morse said he had not personally witnessed the physical transfer of the stock, but he trusted the bank, and presumed the ice withdrawn was placed to its credit or personal accounts. The Copper stock, he said, was worth a trifle more in the market at that time than ice, and other banks were accepting both stocks at their respective market values as collateral for loans.

Asked about the shift of loans between the National Bank of North America and the Mercantile National, he said Mr. Heinze had applied to him for a loan of $40,000, saying that Mr. Curtis had told him that the bank could not make the loan. Mr. Heinze had told him. Mr. Morse continued, that he did not like to borrow for himself from his own bank, and suggested a shift of loans, offering to carry $500,000 for the National Bank of North America. Mr. Morse then told how he had had the Pilsbrose and Brana and Wilder notes for $200,000 and $100,000 taken to the Heinze bank and accepted in exchange for $300,000 from the Mercantile in notes. "In giving Mr. Curtis instructions concerning the matter, I cautioned him to get good collateral on the Heinze loan," added Mr. Morse, "as I was just leaving for Europe."

Morse insisted that he could not explain why the last of the Whitney loans were not reported to the board of directors. Had he noticed the omission he certainly would have called attention to it. While on the steamer on the way to Europe he received a wireless saying that he had neglected to guarantee the Heinze loan. He had sent the guarantee by wireless.

ROCKEFELLER TO VOTE FOR TAFT.

Mack Says Both Must Have Received Their Price.

Declaration Good for 100,000 Votes in Doubtful States.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—A statement from John D. Rockefeller announcing that he intends to vote for William H. Taft for President next Tuesday, and telling why he will do so, and why he thinks Mr. Taft should be elected, was given out from the Standard Oil Company's office here last night. The issuance of the statement followed a personal call at the main office of the Standard Oil Company by Mr. Rockefeller, who, in his reminiscences recently published, said he had been there only once in the past few years.

Charges were made by National Democratic Chairman Mack today that the declaration of Rockefeller was the result of the deal between the Republican committee and the Standard Oil interests, whereby National Chairman Hitchcock received large campaign contributions and Mr. Rockefeller the promises. Mr. Mack said that undoubtedly the $29,000,000 fine of the Standard Oil Company would be fixed up in the interest of Taft as half bargain. The Democratic national chairman said:

"The Standard Oil Company has landed where everybody knew it would land. Mr. Rockefeller held back for a bargain, and got what he wanted. His declaration for Taft is good for at least 100,000 votes in the doubtful states. I cannot speculate on the exact amount the Republican committee received from Mr. Rockefeller, but one can rest assured that they both received their price. Hitchcock getting the money and Rockefeller the promises, which suggests the question whether Taft is with Rockefeller or with Roosevelt.

"We now have the Oil Trust and the Steel Trust lined up side by side working for Mr. Taft's candidacy. Mr. Carnegie's statement yesterday, on his arrival from Europe, that the election of Mr. Bryan would be a tragedy is not only shocking, but should arouse the indignation of all fair-minded citizens of the country, regardless of party affiliations. Mr. Carnegie, I am reliably informed, is not even a voter in this country. Mr. Carnegie has amassed a large fortune, as the result, in part at least, of Republican policies, special privileges and a rubber tariff, which Mr. Bryan and every true Democrat condemns as so odious and oppressive as to demand reform."

National Chairman Mack declared that he had learned that the Republican committee has a campaign fund of $3,000,000, and that of this sum $2,000,000 is being used for purposes of coercion and bribery. The national chairman said, further, that $200,000 of the Republican fund has been sent into Indiana, and that more than that sum has been sent into Ohio.

This Morning's News.

GAVE PROFITS TO THE BANK.

Morse, on the Stand, Visibly Affected by Nervousness.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—Shaking visibly from nervousness and testifying in a voice so weak that it was scarcely audible, Charles W. Morse, while on the stand today, in his own behalf, said that the profits from the sale of 40,000 shares of Ice Trust stock, $6 a share, were given by him to the National Bank of North America.

Mr. Morse, with Alfred H. Curtis, former president of the National Bank of North America, is on trial in the criminal branch of the United States circuit court on a charge of conspiracy and violation of the national banking laws.

All during the tedious days of the trial Mr. Morse has sat beside the railing, nervously awaiting the moment when it would be come necessary for him to take the witness chair and undergo the ordeal of cross-examination that he knew was in store for him.

When his name was called late today he sprang from his chair as if greatly startled, looked inquiringly at his counsel, and when the latter nodded his head affirmatively the financier hurried to the witness stand beside Judge Haught's bench and moved about restlessly in his seat while the lawyers were framing questions to ask him.

In a voice so weak that the jury could not hear him Mr. Morse gave his birthplace as Bath, Me., said he had graduated from Bowdoin College and that on coming to New York he engaged in the shipping and later in the ice business.

After these preliminary interrogations the lawyers for the government volleyed questions at Mr. Morse so rapidly that the financier's voice utterly failed him when he endeavored to answer them.

Mr. Morse was kept on the stand until an adjournment had been taken.

NEW HAVEN ROAD OBJECTS.

Declares Demand to Expedite Merger Case Unconstitutional.

BOSTON, Oct. 29.—The New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad served notice in the United States circuit court here today that it considered Attorney General Bonaparte's move to expedite the merger case a violation of the constitution and that the company would fight it to the court of last resort. Three judges of the court fixed November 17 as the date when the objections of the road to the advancement of the bill in equity brought by the government to prevent the Boston & Maine railroad merger and to divorce the New Haven company from its trolley holdings will be heard.

The request for the advancement of the case was made by the Attorney General on the so-called expediting act of Congress. It was the first time that the now famous merger case has appeared in open court, and from the statements of Colonel J. H. Benton of the New Haven road it is likely to be before the courts for some time to come.

The bill in equity was filed in the United States circuit court by District Attorney French in June and demands under the Sherman act that the New Haven company relinquish its holdings of stock of the Boston & Maine railroad and also dispose of its interest in numerous street railway companies, on the ground that such holdings constitute a restraint of trade.

Since the original bill was entered the New Haven company and the Boston & Maine have filed demurrers.

About a month ago District Attorney French filed a request in behalf of Attorney General Bonaparte that the case be advanced to the circuit court of appeals, basing his claim on the recent act of Congress called the expediting act. The counsel for the New Haven company objected to such advancement, and today both sides met before Judges Colt, Putnam and Lowell.

CONFESSES BRIBERY IN COURT.

Contractor Accuses Ruef Men of Influencing a Juror.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 29.—E. A. S. Blake, a contractor, convicted of attempting to bribe John M. Kelly to qualify on the jury to try Abram Ruef and vote for Ruef's acquittal, made a full confession in court today. Blake stood in the shadow of the prisoners' dock, with a sentence behind the bars resting upon him, and saw the young wife led in tears from the courtroom hysterically crying "No, no." His story created consternation in the courtroom and his case was continued for two weeks.

Blake said that, after he was arrested on a charge of bribery, Frank J. Murphy, Ruef's associate counsel, came to him and promised him $10,000 if he would keep quiet. He said that notes for $12,000, purporting to be signed by Ruef, were delivered to a third party, to be paid to Blake immediately after he was sentenced if he were convicted of bribery. Besides this amount Blake declared, his wife was to receive $100 a month while he was in the penitentiary.

When Blake was called on today to rise and receive sentence, his wife cried "No, not that," and began to cry hysterically. She was led from the room.

After motions for a new trial and arrest of judgment had been denied Blake said that he had a statement to make as a reason why sentence should not be pronounced. This came as a surprise to his attorneys, who were permitted to withdraw their case.

After he had been sworn and stated that he had not been promised immunity, Blake said he had been offered $1,000 by two attorneys, A. S. Newburgh and F. J. Murphy, of Ruef's counsel, to influence J. M. Kelly, a prospective juror, to vote for the acquittal of Ruef. He at first offered Kelly $500, which was refused, he said, but an offer of $1,000 was accepted.

It was then brought out in allegations that Newburgh had procurred attorneys for Blake's defense. Blake then told of the alleged offer of $10,000 and provision for his wife while he was in prison if he would not make a confession.

LENOX WITHOUT WATER SUPPLY.

The water supply of Lenox has entirely failed, and the wealthy residents of the richest town for its size in the world will depend on spring water for a time at least or go without. The effect of the prolonged drouth has been noticeable for some time, and the wells that in ordinary times supply the town with 150,000 gallons of water a day are entirely dry. A big force of men is at work laying a pipe line to neighboring water systems.

A BAPTIST ELDER

Restored to Health by Vinol

"I was run down and weak from indigestion and general debility, also suffered from vertigo. I saw a cod liver preparation called Vinol advertised and decided to give it a trial, and the results were most gratifying. After taking two bottles I regained my strength and am now feeling unusually well." Henry Cunningham, Elder Baptist Church, Kingston, N. C.

Vinol is not a patent medicine—but a preparation composed of the medicinal elements of cods' livers, combined with a tonic iron and wine. Vinol creates a hearty appetite, tones up the organs of digestion and makes rich, red blood. In this natural manner, Vinol creates strength for the run-down, overworked and debilitated, and for delicate children and old people. For chronic coughs, colds and bronchitis Vinol is unexcelled.

All such persons in this vicinity are asked to try Vinol on our offer to refund their money if it fails to give satisfaction.

[illegible] volume Mr. Upton has [illegible] text of the old [illegible] of the series sufficiently [illegible] one convenient refer[illegible] new matter, to bring it up [illegible] been added, including [illegible] of such modern musi[illegible] Strauss, Edgar, Ivor [illegible]. It is properly illustrated [illegible] has been made as [illegible] as possible. It will be found [illegible] its list of composers [illegible] less than 51, and the works [illegible] in detail include from one to [illegible] each composer.

[A. C. McClurg & Co.]

[illegible] Eleanor Smith Music Course, [illegible] by Eleanor Smith, head of [illegible] department of music, School of Ed[illegible] University of Chicago.

[illegible] course is distinguished by its [illegible] high artistic quality, and [illegible] research of years among all [illegible] songs which yield beautiful [illegible] children. It includes folk [illegible] many nations, and selections [illegible] works of eminent American [illegible] composers. The poetry [illegible] serves as song texts has been [illegible] with great care. While the ma[illegible] has been selected for its artistic [illegible] it has been carefully graded [illegible] towards difficulty and musical ma[illegible].

[illegible] first steps are taken by means [illegible] which though simple [illegible] in vitality or charm. [illegible] points are worked out by [illegible] music, and illustrated by [illegible] song material. Words and [illegible] such as correlate with the [illegible] of the school, thereby [illegible] interest and variety to other [illegible]. The tastes and interests of [illegible] their stage of development, [illegible] natural range of their voices, [illegible] been consulted in the ar[illegible] of the different books.

[illegible] attractive letter press, with the [illegible] of large notes for first [illegible] will appeal to both teach[illegible] and student. Many of the exercises [illegible] will be found useful also [illegible] teacher as sight-reading [illegible] ear training material. This is [illegible] especially true of Books I and [illegible].

[The American Book Company.]

THE USE OF THE HANDS.

Many a woman has at times keenly [illegible] with the amateur actress [illegible] in dismay, "But what [illegible] do with my hands, monsieur?" [illegible] would be as unintelligible [illegible] many others as "it was to [illegible] Let them hang at the end of [illegible] arms;" yet that is precisely the [illegible] to do with them.

[illegible] old law, "Strength at the [illegible] and freedom at the extremities," [illegible] the most effective rules for at[illegible] grace of the body—and one of [illegible] understood. "Strength" is of[illegible] interpreted as rigidity and "free[illegible]" as carelessness which is not at [illegible] elucidation of the terms. [illegible] as a whole, the waist is the [illegible] and the law means that it [illegible] firmly, the torso and the [illegible] portions of the body swing free. [illegible] So with the arms. The wrist [illegible] the hands the extremi[illegible] therefore. In moving the arm [illegible] should lead always, the back [illegible] upward movement, the [illegible] when the motion is downward.

A beautiful hand is an inheritance [illegible] but it loses half its [illegible] value unless it expresses sym[illegible] and grace in its every movement [illegible] exercise, very simple and [illegible] one which cannot be [illegible] too often:

[illegible] the forearms against the up[illegible] so that the backs of the hands [illegible] shoulders. Drop the hands [illegible] from the wrist, as though there [illegible] in them, and shake them [illegible] position. This tends to make [illegible] supple and leads to a second [illegible] to turn the wrist to lead. [illegible] to hang limp at the [illegible] then the wrist, then [illegible] movement follows so [illegible] the next that they seem [illegible]. A few moments of regular [illegible] of this exercise, after the oth[illegible] one, will really work an [illegible] improvement. Very shortly [illegible] be no need for the question, [illegible] with my hands?"

AGAINST ROOSEVELT AND TAFT.

Republican Leaders and Policies Bitterly Denounced.

Colored Speakers at Suffrage League Meeting Outdo White Democrats.

The meeting at Masonic hall last evening, under the auspices of the New England Suffrage League, was one of the most pronounced anti-Roosevelt and anti-Taft gatherings one can imagine. It was primarily for colored voters, but in the audience there were a larger number of white Democrats than colored men, and those democrats heard speeches more strongly favoring their candidates and more bitterly opposing the Republican nominees and policies than they would hear in a rally under the management of their own partisan leaders. One of the speeches, that of Rev. A. C. Powell of New Haven, was unusually bitter and virulent, even for a campaign speech, and the speaker's attack upon the honesty and moral character of President Roosevelt was especially violent. All speakers urged upon their hearers that the hope of the negro race is in the Democratic party and advised a break from the Republicans.

In spite of the heavy rain there was a good-sized audience present consisting of about an equal number of whites and negroes, the former including several of the prominent Democratic leaders in the city and the latter an equal number of men and women. The Lincoln Band played a number of selections before the speakers arrived. Dr. M. F. Wheatland was a little late in arriving and received a hearty welcome, the audience applauding loudly as he took his seat. Alderman P. J. Boyle occupied a seat on the platform later in the evening and made a brief address.

Rev. J. H. Wiley, pastor of the Mt. Olivet Baptist Church, was the first speaker, introducing Rev. W. H. Scott of Boston as presiding officer. Mr. Wiley said the New England Suffrage League, under whose auspices the meeting was held, is strictly a non-partisan organization, made up of independents of all sorts of opinions. It is an organization of colored men, banded together primarily in the interests of our race, and then of all citizens. In the present campaign the League is opposed to the election of William H. Taft and advises the negro voters not to vote the Republican ticket. He called upon Rev. Dr. Smith to offer prayer and then introduced Rev. Mr. Scott as chairman.

Rev. Mr. Scott said there is no Republican party now. It is a two-man party, Roosevelt and Taft, the latter Roosevelt's proxy. We have had eight years of Roosevelt, and that is enough. It is claimed that the Republican party freed the slaves, but that is not so. Abraham Lincoln freed the slaves, but it was to save the nation. The Republican party had no special interest in the slaves, except that by freeing them the nation might be saved, and without the 168,000 negro soldiers, the nation would not have been saved. We are no longer frightened by this bugaboo. We are men now. The Republicans have done little for the colored people, not a single law for their benefit has been placed on the statute book since Grant was president. If Taft is elected we shall have only a continuation of the Roosevelt dynasty.

Rev. Walter Gay of Hartford, the next speaker, said it may be that the negroes have been making mistakes for 38 years, but we propose to make another, if it can be called a mistake, by voting next Tuesday against William H. Taft. The negroes have been building up the Republican party and making its continued success possible for 38 years and we do not propose to do it any longer. We have a right to vote against any man who has acted against the rights of our race. It is time now that there should be a change.

In this contest not only personal rights, but the rights of a nation, are at stake. The time has come for us to use our strength to overthrow those who have tried to establish an oligarchy. The laws for the benefit of the negro race are merely laws on paper; they have never been enforced. The Republicans have simply ignored our rights. President Roosevelt has said that he has appointed fewer negroes to office than other President. The few negroes who are in office are there for their own advancement and benefit, not for the benefit of the race.

In conclusion Mr. Gay said he was glad to see Dr. Wheatland taking the stand he has. He has the courage of his convictions. We will see many other prominent negroes breaking away from the Republican party, because it has not treated the colored man right. If we have not the courage of our convictions now, we will never have it.

Rev. A. C. Powell of New Haven was next introduced. He said he was present as an independent, to ask his race to throw off the shackles which have bound them. We are in this elec-

ONE WEAK SPOT.

Most Newport People Have a Weak Part and Too Often It's the Back.

Everyone has a weak spot.
Too often it's a bad back.
Twinges follow every sudden twist.
Dull aching keeps up day and night.
Tells you the kidneys need help—
For backache is really kidney-ache.
A Kidney cure is what you need.
Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys.

Cure backache and all urinary ills.
Newport people recommend the remedy.

Mrs. E. Kelly, 33 Calendar Street, Newport, R. I., says: "Mr. Kelly has considerable pain in the small of his back and other difficulties arising from weak kidneys. When he heard about Doan's Kidney Pills, he procured them at Wright & Hay's drug store, used them according to directions and was promptly relieved. The benefit he derived gives him cause to value Doan's Kidney Pills highly."

BALLADE UPON OLDEN FASHIONS

[W. D. Nesbit, in Chicago Evening Post.]

Where is the ancient waterfall?
Where are the hoops that used to sway
In the bright maze of rout and ball?
Where are the bustles we once called gay?
All in due season had their day—
Basques, and the dolmans that looked queer
Went, like the words in "One Hoss Shay."
Where are the fashions of yesteryear?

Where are the trains they used to haul,
As they strode proudly on the way?
The polonaise, that left them all,
Turban and toque, long since passe,
Jackets and waists of steel and stay
Once they were leaders far and near,
Seen at the dinner, church and play
Where are the fashions of yesteryear?

Where are the sleeves that had the call,
The ruffle, and where, we pray,
Are all the bells that once fell full
[illegible] last May?
Where are the hues, pink, brown and gray,
That were declared to be so dear?
Who is it [illegible] and say?
Where are the fashions of yesteryear?

L'ENVOI.

Here are the bills that men must pay
For all the modes that now the here.
What of the others, now, we say;
Where are the fashions of yesteryear?

FANCIES.

Since uncle tackled politics the family's rather blue.
At first it seemed an easy and a proper thing to do;
But now we are the victims of a patience sorely tried,
And feel constrained to mention things that ought to be denied.
Among them are the pictures that have gotten into print;
My uncle isn't knock-kneed and was never known to squint.
He doesn't wear a stony stare nor smiles all sickly sweet
As depicted on the banners that are floating down the street.
He's not a grinding monster, hating all who toil and plod,
Nor is he, as some friends allege, a dreamy demi-god;
He isn't a Beau Brummel with his elegance polite;
And he isn't any bully, threatening every one in sight.
His enemies by calumny occasion deep distress,
And admirers cause suspicion by their elegant excess.
So his friends and his relations have combined in the demand
For a candid understanding with the people of the land.
We merely want the facts set forth that every one may see
He's only just a human being, same as you and me!

TOO MUCH POLITICAL SPEAKING.

There is too much talking in political campaigns—for the sake of the physical force of the speakers, for their intellectual reputation and for the patience of the people to endure. So much public speaking is a strain on the physical powers which few men can stand. It is exhausting and often leaves the campaigner almost or quite a wreck, and in need of a long rest. It is a severe strain, too, on the capacity of the orator for intellectual effort. When one is addressing audiences every day, or perhaps several times a day, what is said can hardly fail to be drawn out very thin before many days are over. There is no time for real preparation and the result is that the same old story is told every time, or the address becomes a sort of patchwork of different speeches fastened together so clumsily that it is almost possible to see the threads.

It is doubtful, too, if the people care much about it all. They attend the gatherings, it is true, but it is often a question what motive draws them there. Some have sincere interest in the election, and in their party of course; but the interest of many is measured by the feeling of need to keep in touch with the leaders, in order to secure the recognition desired. There are others who attend political meetings because they have nothing else to do or because these furnish a cheap sort of mental stimulus and excitement. With all these classes except the first the listening is largely perfunctory and the listeners might as well be somewhere else, and often probably would be glad to be away from the gatherings which border on or pass beyond the point of boredom. Such persons certainly are far from eager for so much political oratory as is heard in campaign periods.

Besides, it is largely unnecessary. It is doubtful if all the campaign speeches delivered preceding an election serve to change the votes of enough men to affect the result. Some men of course are carried away easily by the flood of speech at the time, but sober thought often brings them back to the point from which they started, while others are affected by the last argument or bit of eloquence to which they listen. There is still a sort of old fashioned notion among the party leaders, however, that men are swayed by oratory as they once were. This is largely a mistaken idea, for in these days men think more on political subjects and do not accept as truth the words of the campaign speaker simply because he says them. Still, the leaders believe oratory counts, and so they pour out upon the people such a flood of speech that it wearies those who try to wade through it and drives others away to escape being engulfed in it.

If both parties would agree to refrain from more than a reasonable resort to campaign addresses it would be well for the speakers, for the parties and for the public, and the possible conversion of some would be provided for. Each party is afraid the other will gain some advantage from this method of campaigning which it will lose if it does not adopt the same course, and so the country is satiated with political oratory, much of which lacks the name and a good deal of which is little more than political [illegible]. The speakers are dragged about from state to state, and city to city, and even from hamlet to hamlet, and made to talk until their throats are sore, their bodies worn and their [illegible] wearied by the repetition of words which they can say almost as well backward as forward, they have [illegible] uttered so often.

There has been a [illegible] improvement this year, by the [illegible] of kerosene campaigning, and now if a reaction could [illegible] against excessive talking and a plan adopted [illegible] only a reasonable amount of oratory its quality would be higher, the speakers would be better able to stand the strain, the people would be more inclined to listen, and perhaps to heed, and political campaigning in this country would be raised to a still higher plane.

POLITICAL PSYCHOLOGY.

It is not certain that Taft will be elected; it is even less certain that Governor Hughes will be elected. Yet no man can doubt, unless he is deeply interested to the contrary, that the chances for their election are far stronger than they were a few weeks ago. Indeed, one may doubt whether those most interested in doing so can resist the influence of these indications. Bryan said in Madison Square Garden that his opponents might be able to defeat him, but they could not deprive him of the credit of starting the campaign for purer politics. This sounds a little as though he were preparing for a defeat. Kern and Mack are telling cock-and-bull stories of vast sums of money with which the Republicans are going to buy the election, which sounds a good deal like an explanation of defeat given in advance. The party approaching defeat generally circulates these stories.

As to the campaign for purer politics, Bryan is entitled to no more credit than many another man. If the credit is to be given to one person it probably belongs to Matthew S. Quay, whose conduct of the Republican campaign 20 years ago was such as to create a universal demand for more stringent ballot laws and for the punishment of electoral crime.

But what are the secrets of political psychology? Nobody knows what the future will bring forth. How does it happen that there is a general impression one way at one time and another at a different time? Why should there have been extreme hopefulness on the part of Democrats in September, accompanied by considerable uncertainty on the part of Republicans, and why should these states of mind be precisely reversed a few days before the election? A few weeks ago the betting odds were decidedly in favor of Chanler in New York; now they are even or there are small odds in favor of Hughes. Odds in favor of Taft are mounting daily. No man is warranted in claiming to know what will happen, but every one must have his impression and it is a mysterious thing that the aggregate of impressions was on the Democratic side a month ago and is on the Republican side now. What moves the public mind and how does any one know what the public mind is?

TENNESSEE AWAKENED.

For some months there has been night riding in the tobacco-growing sections of Tennessee. It hasn't been so general or so barbarous as that in Kentucky, but there has been about as much of it there as in Ohio and Indiana. The governors of these two states have taken energetic measures to protect person and property; considerable bodies of state troops have been called out to patrol the disorderly sections. In Kentucky the governor has not succeeded in stopping the lawlessness, but has been doing all he could to that end. He has had a more serious difficulty to deal with than other governors. He has called out the state troops, kept them in the lawless regions and made strenuous efforts to have the leaders captured and convicted, but has been thwarted by the local feeling, which was either friendly to the night riders or completely cowed by fear of them.

The governor of Tennessee has done little. He has not realized the criminal character of these raids on tobacco growers and has had a lively sense of the political power of the night riders. He has been trifling with the situation. At last he has been aroused. The kidnaping of two prominent men, one of whom was murdered and the other escaped by extraordinary good luck, has moved the governor to put troops in the field, offer a reward for the capture of the miscreants and procure a large number of arrests. This was not a tobacco case. It was a plain case of assassination by men who resented exclusion from a privately owned lake where they had been in the habit of fishing. These criminals were not the agents of a secret society, oath-bound and well armed, and presumably able to control in one way or another a large number of votes. They have few friends and therefore it is pretty safe to proceed against them, and the state officials are manifesting a commendable degree of energy in seeking to bring them to justice.

President Eliot of Harvard has come out strongly in favor of no-license. Having been a moderate user of alcoholic beverages most of his life, and positively opposed to no-license as an infringement of personal liberty, he has undergone a radical change. He holds now to the position that "alcohol in very moderate doses diminishes the efficiency of the working man," that "the habitual use of alcohol in any form is lowering to the intellectual and nervous power" and that "in [illegible] ways we cannot pit ourselves against natural evils on the individualistic principle, but must consider the influence of the individual on others."

[illegible] Loudenslager, secretary of the Republican national Congressional committee, must be chasing [illegible] when he announces that the Republican majority in the next House of Representatives will be greater than in the present Congress. We [illegible] if he really means what he [illegible].

The [illegible] on the result of the Presidential contest strongly favors the election of Taft for President. Betting is not always to be depended upon, but it serves as an indication of how things are going.

Newport is having an opportunity to hear all sides of the question in the Presidential contest. In former Presidential years there have been more rallies, but never so varied an array of political speakers. Of the seven parties in the campaign, only the Socialist and Socialist-Labor have failed to present their claims for recognition to Newport audiences.

The Republicans, as the campaign proceeds, are becoming more and more confident of the election of Taft, and the conditions seem to favor their view of the situation.

Charlemagne Tower characterizes Bryan as the most advanced advocate of all the intangible and uncertain things suggested by Democratic theorists.

MUSICAL MAGAZINES.

Manchester Cathedral is the subject of the cathedral sketch in the October Musical Times. Its illustrations are fine. An effective Christmas anthem by Sir Joseph Barnby, suitable for full choir, with a fine unison solo for the sopranos, appears as an extra supplement. The anthems and part songs appearing in the Times are published separately, in the usual choir form.) The anthem is the Benedictus, "Blessed be the Lord God of Israel." The Competition Festival Record continues, specimen pages of the new cathedral psalter appear, and there are two supplement photographs, respectively, of Sir Ivor Atkins at the organ of Worcester Cathedral, and of Dr. J. Kendrick Pyne, the distinguished organist of Manchester and professor of the Manchester Royal College of Music. A biographical article accompanies the portrait. He was articled at the age of twelve to Dr. S. S. Wesley, so those interested in Wesleyana will find much in this paper.

In the New Music Review Edwin H. Lemare's criticisms and suggestions relative to the modern organ console are continued. As usual, Mr. Lemare speaks with no uncertain sound. His articles are the outcome of the practical experience of one of the most brilliant concert organists of the time. "The Symphony Before Haydn" (was there any?) is the subject of an article by Michael Brenet. Ernest Newman writes of the "Decline of Abstract and the Re-Birth of Vocal Music," E. A. Baughan of the "Classical Dance" and A. Albert Noelte of "Schiller's and Goethe's Works as Operas."

Musical America, Vol. VIII. Nos. 21-24, is at hand, and running over with news and gossip of the coming season, and of the artists, big and little, who crowd these shores in concert time. Forecasts of the symphony and the opera, changes in ensemble, etc., fill the chinks, and there are pictures in plenty. Chaminade, the gifted Frenchwoman now in this country, adorns the title page of No. 21 and Nordica that of No. 21, while an interesting likeness of Emil Sauer, the distinguished Dresden pianist who will play with the Boston Symphony Orchestra this year, is first in No. 23. No. 22 is a special fall issue of 56 pages, richly illustrated This number contains a sketch and portraits of Frederick S. Converse, whose "Pipe of Desire" will be produced at the Metropolitan this year among other novelties.

TWO GREAT DANGERS TO EYESIGHT.

The dangers to which the modern eye is exposed fall into two great classes—disease, and overuse from near work. Here another great consoling fact faces us, and that is that while overwork and consequent eye strain are by far the commonest troubles that befall the modern eye, discomfort and inefficiency are as far as they go in 99 cases out of 100. Never yet was an eye lost solely by eye strain. It is a fact that 99 and nine tenths per cent of all blindness is due to disease, and not to overwork.

More significant yet, seven tenths of the diseases which produce blindness are the acute infections, against which civilizaton wages an unceasing and victorious conflict. Smallpox it has practically overcome, thanks to vaccination. The others hold their own as 'blinders,' on account of our highly intelligent amblyopia in declining to recognize them officially or mention them in public. Just so long as we continue to consider it immodest and improper to discuss these blights, so long they will continue to put out eyes of little children by the thousands.

No known cause which causes blindness is increasing under civilization. So that when we do finally come to our sense and fight all diseases alike, as we surely will, we have good right to confidently expect that blindness will be practically abolished, or reduced to less than five per cent of its present frequency.

Even the risk of blindness from accidental causes, such as wounds, blows, scaldings and burnings, is very much less that it was before, and still diminishing on account of the enormously increased power of curing wounds of the eye given us by antisepsis and asepsis. Where 10 eyes were lost by wounds becoming infected, less than one eye suppurates now.

Governor Higgins Returns from His Stumping Trip.

Liquor Men and No-License Advocates Planning for the Election.

Governor Higgins returned yesterday from his 10 days' speaking tour in the middle West and New York and immediately plunged into the state campaign, making an address in Providence last night. While absent from the state Governor Higgins spoke in Ohio and Indiana, as well as in New York, in behalf of the Democratic national ticket. He spent four days in Ohio, and traveled with Judge Judson Harmon, the Democratic candidate for governor of that state, speaking with him at several of the county seats. He made addresses in Columbus, Youngstown, Ashtabula, Painesville, Conneaut, Warren, Ravenna, Crestline, and other places while in Ohio. The next two days he spent in Indiana, making speeches in Indianapolis and Crawfordsville. He returned to New York the first of the present week, speaking Monday night in Brooklyn, in the Bronx, Tuesday and at Long Island Wednesday evening.

A mass meeting of persons interested in the liquor business took place yesterday afternoon. The hall was packed almost to suffocation. While no definite action was taken, several speakers urged every member of the Liquor Dealers' Association of Rhode Island, under whose auspices the meeting was held, to work among their friends and customers for the retention of the license clause on the statute books. The large attendance in response to the call demonstrated the interest manifested by the dealers in the question of license and great enthusiasm was shown in the applause that greeted the speakers who urged a solid front in favor of voting "yes" on the proposition. Sample ballots showing how the license question should be voted on were distributed and the announcement made that every saloon throughout the state should make itself a school for the education of the voters on how to mark their ballots on this question. The principal speaker of the afternoon was John A. McDermott of Chicago, organizer for the United States Manufacturers' and Merchants' Association, composed of business men's clubs in many of the large cities of the country where the question of prohibition has been taken up. A committee of ten was appointed, one member for each ward, which will have charge of bringing the voters to the polls to cast their ballots in favor of license.

The advisability of requesting every candidate for office to define his position with relation to the no-license question was discussed yesterday afternoon at the meeting of the committee of 100 which is conducting the no-license fight in Providence. After considerable discussion the subject dropped without formal action. Every phase of the coming vote on the no-license question and the probability of having the city go dry were discussed yesterday afternoon at the meeting. Bishop W. N. McVickar presided. Although members of the committee stated frankly that there was little likelihood that the movement would prove successful this year, the plans made indicated that this year's fight was to be but the beginning of a series of well-organized campaigns to drive out the saloon. The committee on meetings announced that a mass meeting for men and a meeting for children will be held Sunday afternoon. The men's meeting will be addressed by Senator A. S. Roe of Worcester, Rev. Edward Holyoke, D. D., Rev. E. I. Lindh of Pawtucket and others. An all-day prayer meeting will be held at the Mathewson Street Methodist Episcopal Church on election day. From 6:30 a. m. to 8 a. m. the meeting will be in charge of the young people's societies of the city. During the remainder of the day the Woman's Christian Temperance Union will be in charge. The canvassing committee has written a letter to every pastor in the city, urging that the voters support no-license on election day.

Warrants for the arrest of two men, charging them with having created disturbances in the Thornton school last Tuesday and Friday, while taking their children from the school, have been asked from Chief of Police John Bigbee by the Cranston school committee. One of the two men against whom the warrants will be issued is an English-born citizen in the Thornton section, who is said to have entered the school, going to the room of one of the teachers, Miss Rogers, there creating a disturbance and taking his daughter from the school. The other man, an Italian, is said to have acted in a similar manner in Miss Rogers's room and then to have gone to the room of the principal, Miss Gleason, where he caused more trouble. The Thornton school of the Cranston department has been the source of trouble of some sort since the town first condemned the land for its site. It was then believed in some quarters that the daughter of Elisha Westcott, owner of the land, would be made principal of the school. Instead, Miss Gleason was chosen. This has resulted in a feeling of dissatisfaction among the parents of some of the children. Whether or not the incidents of Tuesday and Friday last have any connection with this dispute cannot be ascertained.

Thomas F. Cooney, Democratic nominee for Congressman from the Second district, has written a letter to Congressman Adin B. Capron, calling the latter to account for a circular which he says has been given widespread publication in the district intimating that the object of the circular is to secure his defeat because his parents were foreign born. Mr. Cooney says to Mr. Capron: "Upon reading it one can see that it was intended to prevent my election on grounds wholly un-American. Under the circumstances, attendant upon its existence, I have a right to assume it was published with your knowledge and direction in furtherance of your candidacy."

The problem of uniting Trinity and Transfiguration Protestant Episcopal parishes under one head and establishing one large church was considered last evening at the Edgewood Casino at a meeting called by Bishop McVickar. No agreement was reached, however. Concessions having been made by both congregations, which were well represented, the proposition advanced was for the union of the two churches, in the edifice of the present Transfiguration parish, retaining the name and organization of Trinity Church, now at Pawtuxet, as that is the parent church. The latter organization has outgrown its present building and purchased a new lot on Ocean street, and the Edgewood parish is planning for a parish house. The Pawtuxet members living near their own church seemed loth to favor the plan, even with the suggested concessions, although the bishop suggested that the time was ripe to build up a great church in Edgewood for the whole section.

With his father fighting a hard campaign in New York state for election as the chief executive, Charles Evans Hughes, Jr., fought a losing battle for chief executive of the Senior class of Brown University, and lost after three ballots had been taken on three different days. The battle began more than a week ago, when the election of officers for the year was held. At that time Charles Evans Hughes, Jr., Chauncey E. Wheeler of Plainville, Mass., and Robert H. Whitmarsh of Providence were the nominees and Wheeler received the plurality, although not a majority of the votes for the office. Owing to the constitution of the class another election was held for the office. The second election was held the next day and again the vote was not enough to decide the question and the matter was put off. Yesterday, after Whitmarsh had announced that he would not run, the ballot was taken. Wheeler received 61 votes, to 52 for Hughes.

William Henry Potter, one of the two oldest surviving Brown alumni, a veteran of the Dorr rebellion, and formerly prominent in law, who was active in the prosecution of the Gordon brothers for the murder of Amasa Sprague, brother of Governor William Sprague, died at his home at Kingston Hill last night, of diseases incident to old age. Mr. Potter was born on Kingston Hill November 2, 1816, and, had he lived until next Monday, would have rounded out 92 years of life. His mother was Mary Mawney, a descendant of one of the French Huguenot families, which settled in this state early in Rhode Island's history, and his father, Elisha Reynolds Potter, Representative from Rhode Island in the Fourth, Fifth, Eleventh, Twelfth and Thirteenth Congresses. Mr. Potter lived nearly all his life in one of the oldest and most attractive homesteads in the South County, facing the main street and enhanced by the grace of overhanging elms. He graduated from Brown University in 1836 and was a classmate of Nathan F. Dixon of Westerly, later United States Senator. Mr. Potter outlived all his brothers and sisters. His brother, Elisha R. Potter, was a graduate of Harvard and became a judge of the supreme court. Thomas M. Potter graduated at Brown and became a surgeon in the navy. James B. Potter graduated at Brown and became a colonel in the army. Miss Mary L. M. Potter remained a spinster and died about seven years ago at the homestead at Kingston. The real estate owned by Mr. Potter included several thousand acres in South County. There are 750 acres in the homestead property alone.

A SOCIAL RALLY.

True Blue Colored Republicans Have a Pleasant Time.

Addresses by Messrs. Schreier, Dresser and Robinson, With Refreshments.

While the rain descended the true-[illegible] voters gathered at Odd [illegible] Hall on West Broadway last [illegible] and had a good time. It was, [illegible] suggested by Toast Master Allen, [illegible] rather than a political talk. [illegible] music by the Newport [illegible] which certainly earned its [illegible] showed wind endurance, [illegible] was for some time a continuous [illegible]. Caterer Allen had an [illegible] eatables on the side and N. [illegible] Jackson in his cooking raiment [illegible] a guarantee that it was good. It [illegible] planned to have the speak[illegible] of the meeting after the Re[illegible] parade, for the fact that this [illegible] a true blue meeting means [illegible] was Republican. The white sec[illegible] the parade must have gone [illegible] leaving the colored men with [illegible] to do. So they were obliged to [illegible] until the appointed time, [illegible] was stated to be 9, but with the [illegible] allowance was about 9:30.

[illegible] Newport Band finally entered [illegible] hall and tried to make amends by [illegible] continuously. The members [illegible] to enjoy the music and the [illegible] and speakers gradually accu[illegible] in the ante-room. Early to [illegible] and easily recognized because [illegible] size and appearing to feel at [illegible] again, was Daniel LeRoy Dresser. [illegible] there were Sheriff Anthony [illegible] Deputy Sheriff King, George W. [illegible], chairman of the Republican [illegible] committee; Colonel C. L. F. [illegible], Robert W. Goelet, of the [illegible] electors; R. Livingston [illegible] of the Assembly ticket; J. [illegible], Joseph Leikens, Rogers [illegible], James McLeish, Sidney D. [illegible], William C. Lawton, Eugene [illegible] and Robert Frame.

[illegible] the band took a temporary rest and the guests took their [illegible] the platform. This about [illegible] the hall to its capacity. President W. H. Jackson of the Second Ward Political Club called the meeting to order and introduced Colonel [illegible] Allen as toast master, a position which he acceptably filled. Before sitting down, Mr. Jackson said [illegible] with the Republicans, go [illegible] go down, and if the party went [illegible] at this election they would like [illegible] go down with the ship. [illegible] were true to their colors.

[illegible] first speaker, Eugene Schreier, was given three hearty cheers when he was introduced, and three more [illegible] he arose. It was evident that his [illegible] had seen the Daily News [illegible] letter in regard to the colored voters. He talked for some time in regard to the stand which the colored people should take in this and any [illegible] campaign. He felt that they should be Republican all the time. He [illegible] the Civil war and the difficulties through which the country [illegible] and his father's exultation over [illegible] victory of the boys in blue; the [illegible] work done by the Republican party from the start for the colored people and said they should never forget these things. He called attention to the Jim Crow cars in the South and the fact that their votes were [illegible] counted down there, no matter how numerous they were. There were a number of references to conditions as they exist in the South which called for the hearty corroboration from many of his hearers.

Mr. Schreier paid particular attention to Dr. Wheatland, who saw no reason why the colored man should follow the Republican party any longer. He said that perhaps Dr. Wheatland's interests were no longer with the Republican party, but there [illegible] sorts of reasons for the colored voters to stick to that party; there is no place for them. Did they think the Democrats would change down South; would they give the colored voter a [illegible]? If Dr. Wheatland thought he was a Moses, there is a chance for him to go down South and change these things. When he got up against [illegible] Jim Crow cars he would wish he was back in Newport.

The first speaker had said the colored voters would go down with the ship if it went; but he said that before the ship went down they would have a chance to see Bryan going up [illegible]. He had been down South [illegible] a chance to see how the colored people were treated in regard to [illegible] and he told many incidents [illegible] met the cordial approval of [illegible] came from the South. He urged [illegible] voters to vote the Republican ticket from top to bottom. He would not [illegible] for his brother if he was on the [illegible] ticket, and there should [illegible] voting for a man because he is [illegible]. Vote for the straight ticket; [illegible] the only one a colored man has [illegible] right to vote.

[illegible] LeRoy Dresser was the next [illegible]. Many did not know him as [illegible] his six feet plus from the [illegible] it is some years since he [illegible] a resident of Newport. He [illegible] himself by saying that he [illegible] some of them, but he re[illegible] those he knew when he was [illegible] in Newport—Jim Phillips, with [illegible] "Spot" Thomas, [illegible] Rice and John Weeden, whose [illegible] in the habit of coming [illegible] to sing. Only the other [illegible] Lewis Smith, who said: [illegible], Mr. Dresser, when you [illegible] to come and box [illegible] Lewis had never ac-[illegible]

[illegible] days, said Mr. Dresser, [illegible] talk of the colored man [illegible] the Republican ticket. [illegible] that things had [illegible] mind there is still no [illegible] colored man should [illegible] party that made him. In [illegible] day a colored man would [illegible] if he was even [illegible] the Democratic ticket. [illegible] party was organized [illegible] with slavery. During all [illegible] of war, during the [illegible] of reconstruction, it [illegible] work, hampered, as [illegible] by the Democratic [illegible] before you, the [illegible] old party, with a [illegible] probably the best [illegible] has run for the [illegible] many years. He has [illegible] a governor of the [illegible] Panama, in the cabinet; [illegible] varied experience. He [illegible] that he would be the [illegible] the country ever had. [illegible] and his ex-[illegible] agree that he has [illegible] ought to make the [illegible]

[illegible] other side? A man [illegible] of opportunity. He [illegible] of admiration of [illegible] ability. He [illegible] much what he says [illegible] which interests [illegible] and an orator, and [illegible] his time. He [illegible] there in Chicago [illegible] party was all [illegible] know what it was [illegible] than Nebraska [illegible] seized and his speech [illegible] It was his [illegible]. Later the [illegible] in New York [illegible] country," he called it [illegible] were not to his lik[illegible] speech lacked the mes[illegible] merism of his "crown of gold" speech, but when things favor his oratory is still effective.

But what does he stand for? He has shifted from platform to platform, he no longer calls our home here in the East "the enemy's country." Free silver, government ownership and other theories have been abandoned and now he talks bank guarantee. It is simply a fad. To carry out his plans in the city of New York alone it would be necessary to have at least a thousand million dollars on deposit with the government all the time. The banks could not loan any of this vast sum; they must let it lie idle. Then he would have any one given power to start a national bank. There would be an influx of men who are not straight in national banking circles. You all know that even now some directors have been digging into the banks' funds too much, and many are now in jail or before the courts in consequence. What this country needs is a good banking law, such as your Senator Aldrich is trying to formulate and to obtain material for which he spent the summer in Europe. If we had such a law we would not have had the last panic. That was a money panic—not the kind of a panic which disturbed the country in 1893 and disturbed everything.

There is need of a revision of the tariff. This the Republicans propose to make through a commission, which will adjust things without disturbing business and accomplish the changes needed without stopping or putting men out of business. The Democratic way is to make some radical change which will disturb and yet do no good. If the workingman will look at things right he will see that the interests of capital and labor are indentical and they should work together. Of course if the pay does not give the workman his part of the proceeds he should object and try to get his share and he thought that by arbitration he had the best chance. What hurts the capitalist hurts the workingman. Great corporations have become a necessity. They should be kept in the right track and not allowed to do what is wrong, and that is what the present President has been doing, and is what Mr. Taft will do when he is President.

He recalled some incidents of voting down South, where there was a trap door before the ballot box and when a colored man came up the trap was sprung and he was dumped down stairs into a lot of hay. He was not hurt, but he did not vote.

Colonel C. L. F. Robinson said that, after listening to the eloquent speech of Mr. Cummings at Realty hall Wednesday night, he felt that no more talk was necessary. He had heard many speakers, but he thought the speech of Mr. Cummings one of the best and most convincing arguments he ever heard. The only chance the Democrats had was an avalance of the solid South, with some Northern states, and he did not believe that any colored men would assist the solid South, for they must know that the South is solid. He referred to a town in Arkansas where he was in 1892. There were about seven white men and every colored man he talked with was a Republican. There were about 525 votes, but when the election returns were announced they showed 490 Democratic votes. He spoke to the foreman about the result, saying that every one he had seen was a Republican. The foreman said it made no difference how the vote was cast, "it was counted right." You know the Republican party has always been your friend and has done all that has been done for you, and you should stand by it.

Chairman Allen then introduced Mr. Goelet, who he said had come from New York, especially for this meeting and was to return on the late boat. He thought the members should recognize that he was taking a great interest in them in making such a trip. He also introduced Mr. Beeckman, of the legislative ticket. Both, he said, were not speakers, but they were like himself, good workers. He called for three cheers for them and they were given. But the audience was not satisfied with cheers; they wished to hear from them.

Mr. Beeckman, advancing, said he had never made a speech in his life—"but if all of you do not vote on Tuesday for Taft and Mr. Sheffield and the governor you are no good." And the crowd felt that he had expressed himself.

There were calls for Mr. Goelet and he stepped forward and said he was pleased at the hearty reception by the men present. He felt sure from the expression of feeling that every man present would turn out Tuesday and vote the straight Republican ticket from top to bottom, and would give Mr. Taft and Mr. Sheffield and all the other candidates, without exception, a vote.

Mr. Allen anounced that this closed the speaking, but there were other things. This was a sort of social gathering with some speaking thrown in, and the refreshments, which were in sight, would be served and the social part begin. Mr. Jackson announced that the Second Ward Club would meet Friday to take part in the parade. He had heard things good and bad about the Second Ward club, but it would be found in the parade and they would be found voting the straight ticket Tuesday.

It was now somewhere about 10:30, and it was raining outside as though it had never rained before, but inside the hall it was all sunshine. The members of the club and others were introduced to the guests, there was eating and a social time and songs were sung and a general good time until after the midnight hour. It was a great time and evry one enjoyed it.

JAMESTOWN.

[Regular Correspondence to the News.]

Mr. H. A. Clarke and family closed their cottage on Beavertail road yesterday and left for their winter home in Brooklyn.

Mr. Kern of Chicago is guest of his mother, Mrs. M. Kern on Shoreby Hill.

The town council will hold a special meeting tonight to draw five jurors to attend the United States court in Providence. It has been several years since the last juryman for the United States court was drawn from this town.

Ferryboat Newport, of the Narragansett Transportation Company, was taken from the line last evening for the winter, and tied up in her slip at Newport where she will be laid up.

A heavy north wind, accompanied by rain, struck the island last evening lasting all night, the rain ceasing during the morning. The wind decreased and canted more to the westward, but still blew hard. The Narragansett, running between Saunderstown, Fort Getty and the island, had a hard time making her west ferry slip owing to the heavy sea kicked up by the wind. During the morning when the wind was blowing its hardest several trips were omitted. The Beaver Tail had little trouble in making her trips to Newport, the East bay being less rough and her slips less exposed.

TWO CARS DAMAGED.

No One Injured When They Came Together Hard.

Special Runs Away from the Motorman and Strikes a Regular, in Portsmouth.

There was a peculiar accident on the Newport & Providence road this morning, in which two cars had their front vestibules completely demolished, but no one was injured. It was a head-on collision between a special and the first regular car, and took place near Bradford station. The special was running wild, through an accident to the motorman while turning a switch two miles up the road.

Owing to the high wind this morning Superintendent Towle left the car barn on a special before the regular cars began running, in order to be at Bristol Ferry in time to take the lines from the Sagamore on her first trip over, knowing that with such a wind and sea the landing would be difficult and without some one on the dock it would be most impossible. Upon arrival at the landing the special was sent back, that the motorman might take out his regular car to the city.

He was to make the return trip alone, and upon arriving at turn out No. 4, which is in the private way just this side of the Newtown station, it was necessary for him to turn the switch as the car passed over. To do this he stood out on the step, while the car was proceeding under one notch, its lowest speed. It was raining and blowing as hard as at any time during the night, and in reaching for the switch he slipped and fell.

The car was proceeding and he gathered himself together and ran after it as best he could. It is a rough footway through the swamp, built like a steam road, with exposed ties and a growth of grass all around. Wet with the rain, lamed by the fall, struggling over the slippery ties he could make but poor progress. Several times he reached the car and seized the handles, but fatigued and short in stature, he had not enough strength to pull himself up on the step, neither could he reach the trolley rope, to pull the trolley off and thus cut off the power. A number of times he was actually dragged along by the car, and was constantly becoming more exhausted.

When he reached Hedly station he was about exhausted, and while beyond the up grade and the low power on the car caused it to fairly crawl, he could not catch up and trailed along as the car gradually drew away from him. There was no assistance for him to call in that locality, devoid of houses, and the storm was still howling. He knew that the regular car leaving the city at 7:35 was approaching the locality and that there must be a collision unless he could reach his car, but he was powerless.

The car rose to the top of the grade and started down the incline to the West Main road. It swept by the stop sign and around the corner of the straight track, a short distance beyond which is the Bradford waiting room. The motorman of the regular car, unsuspecting the danger, suddenly saw through the thick atmosphere the runaway car bowling down upon him. Quick decision had to be made, and it was. Power was reversed and he fled back into the car, but was barely out of the vestibule when the impact came, which reduced the entire compartment where he had been standing to kindling wood, as well as the vestibule on the runaway.

The shock was terrific. There were but two passengers on the car, and with the regular crew all were thrown but none suffered injury. A man belonging in Philadelphia was sitting in the next to the front seat, with the one in front overturned to give more room. The shock sent the back of the seat over and caught him on the knee, but he soon discovered that he was not injured and later continued his journey.

The other passenger, a woman, sat in the rear part of the car, knitting. She claims to have been hurled to the floor, and says that in some unexplained way she found herself in the road. Picking herself up, she must have gone out in her fright, as it would have been impossible for her to have been hurled out through the rear vestibule, when the shock caused everything to move forward. The carmen instinctively gathered themselves for the shock and saved themselves from damaging losses.

The woman, who belongs in Woonsocket, was at first thought to be injured and the car crew sent word to the car barn, telling of the wreck, with a call for a doctor. President Brown took a physician out to the scene, but it was found, after the passenger had recovered from the fright, that she was all right and she started again on her journey.

A minute or two after the cars had come together, the motorman who had been left behind by his car arrived on the scene, thoroughly exhausted, and needless to say in a state of mind when he saw that the expected had happened.

Wreckers were sent to the scene and the two damaged cars were taken to the car barn. The interrupted service of the road was re-established by putting on an open car, since the road has but three closed cars for the island route and two of these are now out of the running.

As soon as the local details were attended to the car builders were communicated with, and a repair gang were started out of the works in New Hampshire to come here and rush the repairs. They will bring many of the necessities for the job which have already been worked out for other cars, and it is expected that the gang will arrive here in the morning and with their shop experience be able to rush the work along much faster than it otherwise could be done.

The accident, while a peculiar one, was likewise a fortunate one, for it might have been much worse, in that there was every opportunity for serious injury to those on board the car.

The effort of the lone motorman to regain control of his car against such great odds is highly commended, and there seems to be no inclination in any quarter to condemn the men for such action as they took, but rather the whole matter is looked upon as an accident pure and simple. This is the most severe accident the road has had since its inauguration.

LOCAL BRIEFS.

—Mr. George W. Larkham of Providence is here for a few days.

—The morning session of the public schools was omitted today on account of the storm.

—Mr. H. McK. Twombly arrived last night in his private car Genesta, to inspect his cottage here.

—In the district court this morning the 19 Block Island cases were continued to November 13.

—Lieutenant Lewis Brown, Jr., U. S. A., who has been on leave here, has returned to his regiment at Fort Riley.

—Colonel Walter Howe of Fort Adams will go to New York Sunday night on court-martial duty at Governor's Island. He will be accompanied by Mrs. Howe.

—Rev. Henry N. Jeter, D. D., returned this morning from a month's trip, during which he visited Baltimore, New York, Washington and various places in eastern, southern and western Virginia, preaching, attending conventions and speaking at various schools.

—News was received today of the sudden death, at the naval hospital, Annapolis, of Warrant Machinist Frank Taylor, formerly located at the naval station here. He was a member of Coronet Council, Royal Arcanum, and leaves a widow who lives in Newport.

—"Two Orphans," the play made famous by Kate Claxton, was reproduced by the Adam Good Company last evening, with excellent scenery and effects and the acting was up to the usual standard of the company. Helen Pingree was a touching figure as the blind Louise, and Sadie Galloupe as Henrietta was pleasing.

—There was a row this noon on Long wharf. Two fishermen were the combatants and one was severely cut, while the other made his escape so quickly that only those who were on the spot had a chance to see anything. Officer Conroy was on the trail, and the crowd which gathered to see what would happen saw him bringing the conqueror in the fight down the wharf and starting him for the station in a cab.

WOOD PRESERVATION.

Great Progress Made in Methods of Prolonging Life by a Chemical Treatment.

During the past few years greater advances have been made in methods of wood preservation than many people realize. Lumber users have become convinced that in the chemical treatment of timber and the consequent lengthening of the woods's life that they can save both the great cost of materials and the labor in renewals.

A few years ago a prominent man, in a paper read before the Pacific Coast Railway Club, called attention to the pressing need of a thorough investigation of all processes used in the preservation of wood. At that time he deplored the fact that neither the government nor corporations would offer inducements to men competent to carry out such investigations. The particular problem which he had in mind was the treatment of piling to make it resistant to attacks of marine wood borers, such as teredo and limneria. This problem is indeed a serious one, but probably no more so than that of preserving ties, poles, and mine timbers against decay.

About the same time that this paper was presented before the Pacific Coast Railway Club, the United States forest service established an office, the duties of which would be to investigate known preservatives and processes and to devise means, if possible, whereby the present methods could be improved or cheapened, or new methods developed to take the place of those already in use. Since its inception, the office of wood preservation has made rapid strides. Up to the present time experiments have been carried on in co-operation with corporations, educational institutions, and individuals, to try out various theories in actual practice, and the results have proved of value not only to the co-operators, but to a large number of people having interests similar to those to which the particular experiment applied.

Preservative treatment is recognized as a paying proposition wherever construction timber is exposed to soil or atmospheric influences causing decay. This statement is fully attested by the rapid increase in the use of treated timber in recent years. The increase has been most notable in the case of railway cross ties. All of the larger companies in the west now use treated ties to a greater or less extent, and many of them operate their own treating plants.

It is also notable that the use of treated timber is confined principally to corporations requiring very large quantities of construction material. This is largely accounted for by the fact that the pressure system of impregnation in common use requires expensive retorts and machinery, and is not adapted to a plant of small capacity, thus making it impracticable for a concern using a small or moderate amount of timber to undertake treating.

Besides the plants operated by corporations for the treatment of their own construction timber, there are a number of plants which do a commercial business, but these being located at centres of distribution, where a permanent business is more readily assured, are not accessible to timber which goes direct from forest to consumer without passing through such central distribution point. For economy, the treating should be conducted at a point where additional transportation charges on account of the treating will be reduced to a minimum. The ranchman drawing his timber from the adjoining forest, should have on the ranch the means for treating his fence posts and similar materials. The mining concern should have at the mine a plant with capacity adapted to their need. An electric company whose lines extend over a considerable area and which draws its timber from various sources, may find a small portable plant best for treating poles.

For several years the forest service has been experimenting with a method of impregnating wood, which requires no expensive equipment, is simple in operation, and is adapted to a plant of any desired capacity. It is now known that all of the more porous woods can be treated successfully by this method. The method is called the "open tank" or "hot and cold bath" process. The impregnation is accomplished by thoroughly heating the timber in a tank containing a liquid substance, then running off the hot liquid and filling the tank with cold, or transferring the timber from a tank containing hot to a tank containing cold liquid, or allowing the whole to cool without change.

The theory of the process is that the air in the wood cells and intercellular spaces expands when heated and is partially expelled. Upon cooling, it again contracts, thus causing a partial vacuum, and the pressure of the air on the outside forces the liquid into the wood. The process may be applied with any of the preservatives in common use; as for instance, creosote oil and zinc chlorid solution. The principle is the same whether the treating is done in a small tank holding a few fence posts and heated with a wood fire underneath, or in larger tanks fitted with steam coils for heating, pumps for handling the oil and labor saving devices for handling the timber.

The results of the government's extensive experiments in wood preservation are published in circulars and bulletins.

WASTE WOOD AND VENEER.

Now Used in the Manufacture of all Kinds of Articles, as Plates, Baskets and as a Finish.

[Scientific American.]

Five hundred manufacturers of explosives, pulp wood, and similar products, have been asked by the National Conservative Commission for information as to all possible uses of sawdust. From this it will be seen the commission is going into fine details in its inventory of the natural resources of the country. Seven thousand lumbermen have been asked for their opinion as to the waste of lumber in sawmills, and more than 2,000 lumber dealers and cooperage, veneer, furniture, box, vehicle, and implement manufacturers have been asked to point out striking features of waste in their respective lines. Yet all this is only one part of the general scheme of hunting down waste which the Commission is following in making its inventory. It is going after the little wastes here and there, which, added together, and put into dollars and cents, make an astonishing total.

For instance, like the making of veneer. At first blush it may not seem worthy of consideration with the manufacture of other products mentioned. Yet, the scarcity of the more attractive finishing woods in the last few years has led to the annual production of over 1,169,656,000 square feet of veneer. This, of course, has been made possible only by the introduction of [illegible] veneer-making machinery.

The use of veneer is generally [illegible] as exemplifying the scarcity of the finer woods and typifying the complete utilization of various kinds of woods, yet from one of the [illegible] of the National Conservation Commission it is evident that the conservation experts to discover great waste even in veneer manufacture.

Though the word veneer carries many meanings, from a glaze applied to pottery to the "polish" of a man of the world, it is commonly employed as the name for the thin slices of wood now extensively used in the manufacture of all sorts of articles of use, such as wood plates, baskets and the exterior finish of furniture and wood work. The manufacture of veneer in the last few years has advanced by leaps and bounds.

The best veneer is sawed, but a great deal is sliced and still more is "rotary cut." By the last named process logs of the desired wood are steamed until they are soft and then fixed in a lathe-like machine, in which they are turned against a wood knife. As the log rotates against the knife, veneer of the desired thickness is peeled off in a continuous sheet, as if you should pare an apple, going deeper and deeper at each complete turn, until nothing is left but the core. The centre of the log left after the veneer is cut is also called a "core."

The woods principally used for making veneer are red gum, maple, and yellow poplar, which together yield more than half of the total product. Red gum is largely used for baskets and maple for furniture. More valuable than these, however, are white oak and walnut veneer. Beech, which can be cut very thin, is used very largely for wooden plates. A number of other kinds of woods are used.

A good deal of waste occurs in the manufacture of veneer. It is always a problem, for instance, what are to make of the cores left by the rotary process. In many cases these are used for pulp wood, pillars, or panel headings, and they are largely used also for fuel, excelsior, crates, boxes, and baskets.

In the schedule of inquiries which the National Conservation Commission, through the Forest Service, is sending out, several questions are aimed to secure information as to the amount of waste in veneer manufacture and the possibilities of finding ways to utilize it.

LOCAL BRIEFS.

—Rev. Mr. Vaughan of Sandwich, Mass., is visiting here.

—Mr. Philip B. Carr has returned from an extended visit in Sharon, Mass.

—Miss Brice closed the T. F. Cushing cottage today and went to New York for the season.

—Ex-Mayor Daniel B. Fearing and Colonel George R. Fearing returned from Europe yesterday on White Star line steamer Adriatic.

—Mrs. Lewis Cass Ledyard will give a dance for her daughter, Miss Morris, some time in December. The date has not yet been arranged.

—Mr. John P. Sanborn and Mr. Clark Burdick will speak at the Republican rally in Little Compton tonight. They will be taken there and back by Mr. E. A. Brown in his automobile.

—Officer Ray has returned from his vacation. Officers W. C. Barker, Joseph Allen and W. F. Watson have been granted ten days' leave of absence.

—Parties at Naugatuck, Conn., have notified the police department that they are anxious to find one Michael Cove, who has been missing six years, and, it is claimed, had a sister living here who married a coachman of French descent.

Past Eminent Grand Commander John P. Sanborn was one of the guests at the banquet in Boston yesterday, at the annual conclave of the Grand Commandery, of Massachusetts and Rhode Island.

—Mr. W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., has declined, owing to ill health, to act as referee at the grand prize automobile race in Savannah, Thanksgiving day. Mr. Vanderbilt's physician advised against the acceptance of a post which would entail considerable excitement, following so closely the big race on Long Island last Saturday.

—A party of 45 enlisted men left the Army and Navy Young Men's Christian Association rooms last evening in a downpour of rain to attend the Hallowe'en social at the First Baptist Church. Supper was served and Hallowe'en games were entered into with much merriment. One apprentice seaman said he was willing to be wet to have such a good time.

STOP OVER PRIVILEGES.

Commission Issues Rulings Applying to Accidents and Excursions and Extends Time.

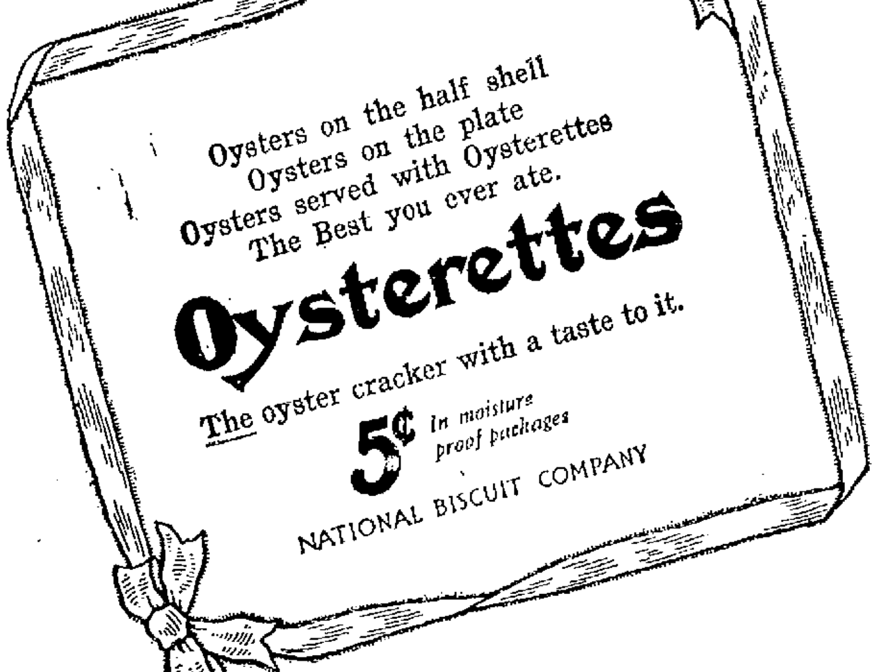

The Inter-State Commerce Commission announces important rulings relative to stop-over privileges and changes in excursion fare tariffs by railroads.

The commission holds that a railroad may provide in its tariffs that whenever, because of washouts or other accidents passengers are delayed beyond their ticket limit, or so as to curtail their stop-over privileges, the conductor or other agent may, by indorsement on the ticket extend the time to cover such detention. This is to be honored by succeeding conductors on the company's lines, but no carrier can provide such extension over lines other than its own, except when provided in a proper joint.

The commission also has authorized changing (by not over 30 days) the terms of short time excursion fare tariffs under certain conditions. When the excursion is limited to not more than three days, changes may be posted one day in advance in two public places for these reasons: Changes of date of meeting, extension of the return limit, additional selling dates, additional stop-over privileges, etc.

If the excursion is limited to between three and 30 days, cancellation of tariff or change in its terms may be made on like notice of three days.

Under new rulings by the commission free passes may be issued to bona-fide employes of a railroad who are traveling to re-enter the railroad's service. Passes cannot be extended to the families of employes who died a natural death while in the service of the common carriers, though that privilege is accorded to the families of employes killed in the service.

ITCHING ECZEMA FIFTY-FIVE YEARS

Suffered Torments from Birth — Boils Formed as Big as Walnuts — In Frightful Condition and Could Hardly Work — Tried All Kinds of Remedies to No Avail — At Last

WHOLLY CURED IN 8 MONTHS BY CUTICURA

"I had an itching, tormenting eczema ever since I came into the world, and I am now a man fifty-five years old. I tried all kinds of medicines I heard of, but found no relief. I was truly in a frightful condition. At last my blood was so bad that I broke out all over with red and white boils, which kept growing until they were as big as walnuts, causing great pain and misery. I thought they would take the skin off my whole body, but I kept from scratching as well as I could. I was so run down that I could hardly do my work. Mr. Nelson R. Burnett recommended the use of Cuticura Remedies, telling me he was confident they would benefit and, in time, cure me. I used the Cuticura Soap, Ointment, Resolvent, and Pills for about eight months, and I can truthfully say I am cured. I cordially recommend Cuticura Remedies to all who are afflicted the same as I was, believing that, if they will use them according to directions, they will find them all they are represented to be. Any one doubting the truth of the above can write to Mr. Burnett, who will cheerfully vouch for my statements. "Hale Bordwell, R. F. D. 3, Cedar Corners, Tipton, Ia., Aug. 17, 1907."

"I cheerfully endorse the above testimonial. It is the truth. I know Mr. Bordwell and know the condition he was in. He never tires of praising the Cuticura Remedies. "Nelson R. Burnett, Tipton, Ia."

Gentle anointings with Cuticura, the great Skin Cure, preceded by warm baths with Cuticura Soap, followed in the severer forms, with mild doses of Cuticura Resolvent Pills, afford instant relief, permit rest and sleep, and point to a speedy cure of torturing, disfiguring, itching, burning, and scaly humors, eczemas, rashes, and inflammations, from infancy to age.

Cuticura Soap (25c.) to Cleanse the Skin, Cuticura Ointment (50c.) to Heal the Skin, and Cuticura Resolvent (50c.) (or in the form of Chocolate Coated Pills, 25c. per vial of 60) to Purify the Blood. Sold throughout the world. Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Sole Props., Boston, Mass. Mailed Free, Cuticura Book on Skin Diseases.

THE STUMPING CRAZE.

Candidates Become Literally Voiceless from Physical Exhaustion in Present Campaign.

[Springfield Republican.]

If Mr. Taft does not make 15 speeches a day hereafter his vote will [illegible] suffer in the least. If Mr. Bryan should now increase his oratorical output to [illegible] a day it would not make [illegible] difference with the result. It [illegible] truth whatever in the saying that battles in real war are won before the first shot is fired, it is no less true the [illegible] are won before the [illegible] stumper opens wide his mouth. Presidential stumping has reached [illegible] when a candidate [illegible] literally voiceless and [illegible] from physical exhaustion. [illegible] that stage has the present campaign come. Mr. Debs in some of his [illegible] has had to be held erect by [illegible] in order that he could speak; [illegible] loses his life as the result of [illegible] no one must be surprised. [illegible] probably, is gladly sacrificing his health and risking death itself [illegible] to employ his presidential candidacy for purposes of agitation, for [illegible] Socialist party is still in the propaganda stage. But for a man who is [illegible] to be President to incur serious [illegible] of this character is no less a [illegible] to [illegible] our political development [illegible] makes the "whirlwind tour" one of the [illegible] features of twentieth century campaigns.

When given the highest possible valuation, excessive stumping is far from being a decisive factor in political contests. It has become the practice of candidates for the presidency, because what one does all must do, as they believe, in order that no advantage, however slight, may be gained by a rival. The truly great forces that make presidents cannot be visualized in a special train speeding from town to town and in a hoarse and haggard orator who attempts to talk to his assembled fellow citizens from 15 to 30 times a day. The merely controversial aspect of a campaign at the best does not really stir the depths of a nation, and the output of words is scarcely more than the lashing of the surface waves. Of arguments and "facts," each side has an abundance. If the Bryan guaranty of bank deposits for example, is more so than the Taft guaranty of a "reasonable profit" to protected manufacturers, in the exchange of retorts on an infinite variety of questions, adroit debaters keep the balance very nearly equal. This is not saying that the presentation of arguments and the making of appeals to the voters are unnecessary, but we cannot escape the conclusion, after an analysis of the facts, that an enormously exaggerated estimate of the importance of oratory and controversial discussion is involved in the "whirlwind tour" theory of campaigning. What the country sees is stumping gone mad. It has reached the acme of a "craze," and in America everything sooner or later passes through the "craze" experience.

Great political battles seen in retrospect furnish one a truer perspective concerning the relative importance of political agencies. No person of historical mind would now say the Democratic victory of 1892 was due mainly to the oratory and controversial arguments of the tariff reformers. There were deeper causes which produced the Democratic tidal wave, and they were to be found in the discontent of the wage-earners of the East, as manifested in the Homestead strikes, and in the extreme restlessness of the Western farmer manifesting itself in the rise of the Populist party. John Sharp Williams has always maintained that Bryan was defeated in 1896 not by the arguments used against him in the press and on the stump so much as by the appearance of "dollar wheat" in the Chicago grain market in the month of October. "Dollar wheat" was an event of the first magnitude, and its political significance in the West was overwhelming compared with the academic arguments for the gold standard. Prosperity made Republican success in 1900 inevitable; talking against it was arguing with a mountain that it would catch cold with its head in the clouds.

Let the best students of politics come together today and estimate the forces working for the solution of the present political problem, and what will they fasten upon as the vitally important factors of the situation? Will they consider very material the number of Mr. Bryan's or Mr. Taft's daily speeches? Will they concern themselves much with the arguments either candidate is now using, so long as he shows ordinary discretion? They will make comparatively little of these points, we may be sure. What they will really concern themselves with are the deep, underlying movements of popular sentiment as related particularly to events and the conditions of the time. "Dollar wheat" in October did much to defeat Mr. Bryan 12 years ago; are there in evidence today events of that magnitude which must affect the election in favor of or against the party in power? Is the country discontented as in 1892, or is it in a mood of placid satisfaction over things as they are, as in 1900? Are wage-earners this year devoted to the idea of "let well enough alone"? What of the farmers of the great Western plains—do conditions, political and economic, suit them? And how do local conditions, here, there and everywhere, affect the general situation? What of party disorganization and feuds? Are the people as a whole, finally, in the curious yet immensely significant, if unreasonable, mood of wishing for a "change"?

It may be repeated that it really does not matter whether Mr. Taft delivers one or a dozen speeches a day, or whether Mr. Bryan gears up to fifty; the speeches are rapidly declining in importance as the election draws near. Tell us what those deeper forces aim at, and with what power and persistence, and we will tell you who will be the next President.

AGAINST TAX PAYMENT IN LUMP.

Pawtucket Aldermanic Candidate Raises Question of Legality of the Method.

The legality of the method of paying the taxes of personal property voters by a check in a lump sum is to be tested under a petition for a writ of certiorari filed in the supreme court Wednesday afternoon by John F. Lennon, Democratic candidate for alderman from the Third ward of Pawtucket, who avers that the board of canvassers improperly placed the names of such taxpayers whose taxes were paid by a check signed by William H. Barclay and payable to J. Ellis White, city treasurer, on the lists as qualified voters. Citation was issued upon the petition, returnable this morning at 10 o'clock. The petitioner quotes from Article II of the constitution of Rhode Island as amended by section 1 of Article VII of the amendments as follows:

"Provided that no person shall at any time be allowed to vote in the election of the city council of any city or upon any proposition to impose a tax or for the expenditure of money in any town or city unless he shall within the year next preceding have paid a tax assessed upon his property therein valued at at least $134."

The petition sets forth as one of the causes of error in the action of the board of canvassers of Pawtucket that "because the persons named in the list herewith filed did not pay said tax their names were illegally kept upon and certified to as persons legally qualified to vote for the city council of said Pawtucket."

More specifically the petitioner says, in detailing the causes why the board of canvassers, in his opinion, made a mistake in its work:

"Because the taxes of said persons upon said list herewith filed were attempted to be paid 'in lump' by a blank check signed by William H. Barclay and payable to J. Ellis White, city treasurer of said Pawtucket, said blank check was not a lawful payment of said taxes.

"Because, if said blank check be held to be legal payment of the taxes found due on said lists, said payment was not made by the persons assessed, as required by law, nor by their agent, but by the chairman of a political party, said Barclay, and said payment was made to enable and induce said persons to vote for the election of city council of said Pawtucket, and is also illegal as being bribery."

The petitioner says that the board of canvassers held a meeting Wednesday to canvass the voting lists and adopted and certified certain voting lists containing the names of certain persons designated as "Personal Property Voters." He also alleges that the city treasurer wrongfully certified certain names of persons as having paid a tax assessed against them within one year, so that the names should be placed on the voting lists of the Third ward.

HALLOWE'EN PARTIES.

Great Care Should be Taken to Have Surroundings Right and the Proper Decorations.

Hallowe'en parties for children and grownups will be the rule this week. As half the fun of going to a party and nearly all the fun in giving an affair of this kind, is in having the surroundings right, great care should be taken with the decorations. As this festival is often called "Nutcrack Night," nuts can be used in profusion, either festooned in strings after being gilded and colored, or else used in their regular colors suspended from miniature trees and other available places. Cunning little witches, too, can be bought at almost any department store or favor shop and these can be used in a variety of ways. They may be used to grace each place as favors or they may be suspended from every chandelier and other place. A very pretty table can be arranged in this way: For a centerpiece place on a cloth of black material a round mirror edged with a ring of moss in which tiny dolls' broomsticks can be stuck. Flowers of bright hue—golden rod, salvia or bittersweet—may twine in and out amid the little brooms. From the chandelier suspend a swing of red or yellow silken cord with a tiny wooden seat and on this set a doll witch so that she is suspended directly over the mirror pool. If wished a yellow paper half-moon and a few tiny stars may be pasted to the mirror. The candy receptacles may be little black kettles over which doll witches preside, and the same little kettles may be the holder for the cut-up peaches or other fruit with which the supper is to begin.

Strings of real nuts and apple parings dangling from red ribbon strings can depend from chandeliers. Coconut shells filled with bonbons can be the candy dishes and luscious fruit, preferably apples and "golden pears," can be piled high in two pumpkin dishes. An effective cake for supper is a nut cake with cream filling. Frost with chocolate and on top have empty walnut shells stuffed with little cotton "faces."

The hostess has now opportunity, above all others, for beautiful and elaborate decorations at but small expense, for nothing is prettier for decorative purposes than natural foliage and the woods at this season are showing their richest coloring: golden browns, russets and scarlet leaves and here and there a touch of vernal green that Jack Frost has quite overlooked. Gather the various colored leaves and ferns, trailing chains and garlands of these, which wind about the balustrades and above the doors and windows. A bay window may be transformed into a shady bower by having a generous supply of vines, leaves and potted plants gracefully arranged and a dash of yellow suggestive of Hallowe'en may be employed by using yellow flowers. In this room cover the floor with leaves for a leafy carpet which will swish and rustle as the guests walk about. An artistic setting could be given the feast by covering the table with a cloth apparently of leaves. A piece of green tarlatan forms the foundation, upon which have leaves of bright colors, overlapping each other and radiating from the centre in all directions. A single stitch in the centre of each leaf will be sufficient to hold it in place while making. It is not at all difficult. Fruit is ever an attractive centerpiece for the dining table. A large bowl or dish filled with leaves and the base of which is wreathed with yellow flowers will be suitable. Fruit of different kinds—grapes, pears and apples.

NAVAL RESERVE BASKET BALL.

At a meeting of the Naval Reserves last evening the following committee to have charge of athletics was elected: William Bowler, Robert Graham, Patrick Collins, Alex Gillies and Matthew Farley. Harry L. Vars was chosen to manage the basket ball team to succeed Peter Campbell, last year's manager. Announcement was made that the first game will be played Tuesday evening, November 17, although no arrangements have been made as yet for an opposing team. The Naval Reserves will have the same basket ball team this season as during the last two years.

CITY WHARF REPAIRS.

If Street Commissioner Has Contract, Who Will Supervise It?

Report of Commissioners on Cost of Land for Proposed Harrison Avenue Roadway.

The Board of Aldermen held the weekly meeting Thursday evening, Mayor Clarke presiding and all but Alderman Shepley present.

Weekly pay rolls were approved as follows: Streets and highways, $1,279.72; police, $739.17; fire department, $437.77; city officers, $194.62; public buildings, $11.51; firemen at theatres, $46.

Monthly pay rolls were approved as follows: Police, $150; police relief fund, $356.66; fire department, $141.67; city officers, $1,729.39; Rev. B. H. Rosengard, $100.

The report of the commissioners appointed October 1 to report on the cost of land for the proposed roadway from Harrison avenue through the old poor lot reported that 12,609 square feet of land of Henry B. Bateman is required, for which he asks $2,500; of R. A. and H. H. Bateman's land 7,325 feet is required, for which he asks $732.50; of D. J. Murphy's land 800 feet is required, for which he asks $1,000. This is the same price he asked for the entire 4,000 feet, leaving 3,200 feet to be disposed of. Of A. S. Hamilton's land 2,993 feet is needed, for which she asks $300. The road cuts J. F. Sullivan's lot in two and spoils it for his use, and the entire lot must be taken, for which he asks $14,000. Of Evelyn Thompson's land 7,460 feet is required, for which the cost will be $792, making a total cost for land of $19,324.50.

Mr. Boyle asked how this report agreed with the one made by the Park Commission. City Clerk Fullerton said the Park Commission report included other land than that needed for a road, while this took only what is required for a roadway. Mr. Boyle said the idea was to secure an estimate through the commission and submit it to the Park Commission. It was understood that the Park Commission would receive financial aid from some who are interested in having the road laid out. He moved that the report be received and sent to the Park Commission, and this was done.

The bill of the three commissioners—A. S. Meikle, E. C. O'Neill and James J. Rooney—for $150, was presented. On motion of Mr. Boyle the bill was laid on the table.

A communication was received from the street commissioner in regard to the extension of the sewer on Extension street extended. He said he found that the work is necessary, and as he had money available for the work he did it. The report was received.

The petition of Patrick Fitzsimmons, for reduction of taxes, was referred to the assessors of taxes.

Charles H. Turner was granted a license for an intelligence office. Joe Gold was given a renewal of his junk license.

Bids were opened for the repair of City wharf. The Newport shipyard bid $1,250 and J. K. Sullivan $1,668. Mr. Boyle moved that the contract be awarded to J. K. Sullivan, he being the lowest bidder. Mr. Kingman asked who is to superintend the work if Mr. Sullivan has the contract, as the specifications call for the work to be done to his satisfaction. Mayor Clarke suggested that if he does the work it should be done to his satisfaction.

Mr. Pierson, manager of the Newport shipyard, said that little has been done to the wharf in the past 27 years, and instead of the work being worth $1,250 it is worth more, nearly $1,800. It could not be done for less than $1,250. Still, if Mr. Sullivan did work as he did on the Ann Street pier, he might make more at $1,600 than he (Pierson) could at $1,250. Mr. Boyle asked what he would take to superintend the work, and Mr. Pierson said he did not want the job. He told what is to be done and what material it would take.

Mr. Boyle said it was the rule to award the contract to the lowest responsible bidder, but, as Mr. Kingman suggested, this is a peculiar condition of affairs. Who is to see that the city's interests are looked after, if Mr. Sullivan has the contract? He suggested that both bidders be asked to appear before the board at its next meeting, with a detailed statement of what it is proposed to do. This was voted. Both Mr. Kingman and Mr. Boyle said they did not, in what they said, suggest that Mr. Sullivan's work would not be good, but the interests of the city are supposed to be guarded by the board in all such matters.

Morris Rosenthal was granted a license to peddle coal. Mr. Boyle said a coal dealer had told him that sometimes these peddlers make $4 a ton on coal sold from the wagon; the smaller the size of the sale the more they made. The coal trust is not in it with these peddlers. Mr. Cottrell said the people who pay the most are the least able to do so. Chief Crowley said the coal dealers are not opposed to the peddlers, and Mr. Boyle suggested that coal is a necessity and there could be no objection to allowing it to be sold.

Mr. Cottrell presented a petition from Admiral Chadwick and others, for a gas light on Red Cross avenue, near Bath road. He said that coming from Bath road the street is very dark and a light is much needed there. There was talk about funds, and Mr. Boyle suggested that if the next two months were no larger than the last there would be a balance, and they would not be so large. He thought there was enough for this light; it would cost only seven cents a day. Mayor Clarke said if there are other petitions for gas lamps, but no one remembered any. This light on Red Cross avenue was ordered and Alderman Cottrell was appointed a committee to locate it.

The board then adjourned.

TROOPS ORDERED TO HAWAII.

Important Assignment Made by War Department to Increase the Garrison There.

An important assignment of troops to the Hawaiian islands was made Thursday in pursuance of a determination by the War Department several months ago substantially to increase the garrison there. The headquarters band and the first and third squadrons of the Fifth cavalry were ordered to the Hawaiian islands.

There are now but four companies of infantry in the islands, and that number has long been inadequate in view of the plan to build up a substantial naval station there. It is understood that with the improvement of Pearl harbor the War Department considered it necessary to have a substantial guard there. Some time ago a company of engineers was ordered to the islands and will sail from San Francisco November 1.

There is an excellent military reservation now on the islands, furnishing ample quarters for the additional troops. It is understood that the plans for increasing the garrison of the islands also call for batteries of artillery, which it is expected will be sent later.

The band and first squadron of the Fifth cavalry now are at Fort Huachuca, Ariz., and the third squadron of the Fifth cavalry is at Fort Wingate, Ariz.

TOWN OF MIDDLETOWN.

ELECTION WARRANT.

THE STATE OF RHODE ISLAND AND PROVIDENCE PLANTATIONS.
NEWPORT Sc.

TOWN CLERK'S OFFICE
OF MIDDLETOWN,
OCTOBER 26, A. D. 1908.

WHEREAS, THE TUESDAY next after the first Monday of November next, A. D. 1908, is one of the days designated in the Constitution of this State, for the annual election of General Officers and Senators and Representatives for the General Assembly of this State, and is also one of the days appointed by law, for the choice of Electors in this State, for the election of a President and Vice President of the United States, and for Representatives in Congress from this State;

AND WHEREAS, the General Assembly by its two certain resolutions passed May 21, 1908, and May 26, 1908, respectively, has directed that the two propositions hereinafter named, for the issue of State Bonds should be submitted to the electors and has also by its resolution adopted April 10, 1908, proposed the amendment to the Constitution of the State hereinafter recited, and provided that it should be submitted to the qualified electors of the State in accordance with the provisions of Article 13 of the Constitution:

THEREFORE, the qualified electors of the Town of Middletown, are hereby notified and warned, to assemble in Town Meeting at the Town Hall in said Town on the Tuesday next after the first Monday of November next, A. D. 1908—it being the third day of November next, A. D. 1908,—at ten o'clock A. M., for the following-named purposes, to wit:

Before the election of Senator and Representative shall be had, to consider the following-named proposition of amendment to the Constitution of this State, proposed by the General Assembly thereof, to wit:

"RESOLUTION PROPOSING AMENDMENTS TO THE CONSTITUTION OF THE STATE.

"RESOLVED, That a majority of all the members elected to each House of the General Assembly voting therefor, that the following amendments to the Constitution of the State be proposed to the qualified electors of the State, in accordance with the provisions of Article XIII of the Constitution, for their adoption, to be denominated Article XIII of Amendments:

"ARTICLE XIII.

"SECTION 1. Every bill, resolution, or vote (except such as relate to adjournment, the organization or conduct of either or both Houses of the General Assembly, and resolutions proposing amendment to the Constitution), which shall have passed both Houses of the General Assembly, shall be presented to the Governor.

"If he approves it he shall sign it, and thereupon it shall become operative; but if he does not approve it he shall return it, accompanied by his objections, in writing, to the House in which it originated, which shall enter his objections in full upon its journal and proceed to reconsider it. If after such reconsideration, three-fifths of the members present and voting in that House shall vote to pass the measure, it shall be sent, with the objections, to the other House, by which it shall likewise be reconsidered, and, if approved by three-fifths of the members present and voting in that House, it shall become operative in the same manner as if the Governor had approved it; but in such cases the votes of both Houses shall be determined by ayes and nays, and the names of the members voting for and against the measure shall be entered upon the journal of each House, respectively. If the measure shall not be returned by the Governor within six (6) days (Sundays excepted) after it shall have been presented to him, the same shall become operative unless the General Assembly, by adjournment, prevents its return, in which case it shall become operative unless transmitted by the Governor to the Secretary of State, with his disapproval, in writing, within ten days after such adjournment.

"SEC. 2. The Lieutenant Governor shall preside in the Senate and in Grand Committee. The presiding officer of the Senate and Grand Committee shall have a right to vote in case of equal division, but not otherwise.

"SEC. 3. If, by reason of death, resignation, absence, or other cause, the Lieutenant Governor is not present to preside in the Senate, the Senate shall elect one of their own members to preside during such absence or vacancy; and until such election is made by the Senate, the Secretary of State shall preside. The presiding officer of the Senate shall preside in Grand Committee and in Joint Assembly.

"SEC. 4. The House of Representatives shall never exceed one hundred members, and shall be constituted on the basis of population, always allowing one representative for a fraction exceeding half the ratio; but each town and city shall always be entitled to at least one member; and no town or city shall have more than one-fourth of the whole number of members. The General Assembly may, after any new census taken by the authority of the United States or this State, reapportion the representation in conformity with the foregoing provisions. As soon as this amendment goes into effect, the General Assembly shall divide each town and city into as many districts as it is entitled to representatives, and after each census, or as occasion may require, the General Assembly may so divide each town and city, and one representative shall be elected from each district by the qualified electors thereof. Such districts shall be as nearly equal in population and as compact in territory as possible.

"SEC. 5. This amendment shall take, in the Constitution of the State, the place of Sections 2 and 3 of Article VI 'Of the Senate,' and of Section 1 of Article V 'Of the House of Representatives,' which said sections and all other provisions of the Constitution inconsistent herewith are hereby annulled."

To give in their votes in the manner provided by law, for the choice of four Electors in this state, for the election of a President and Vice President of the United States, for the term ensuing from the fourth day of March next, A. D. 1909.

To give in their votes in the manner provided by law, for the election of a Representative from the First Congressional District of this State, to represent said District in the Sixty-First Congress of the United States.

To elect in the manner provided by law one Senator and one Representative to represent this Town in the General Assembly of this State for the political year ensuing the first Tuesday of January next, A. D. 1909.

To give in their votes in the manner provided by law, for a Governor, Lieutenant Governor, Secretary of State, Attorney General and General Treasurer of this State, for the political year ensuing the first Tuesday of January next, A. D. 1909.

To give in their votes in the manner provided by law, for the approval or rejection of the following-named proposition, to wit:

"STATE HIGHWAY CONSTRUCTION LOAN.

Shall the general assembly be authorized and directed to provide for the issue of bonds not to exceed in amount of six hundred thousand dollars, the proceeds of which bonds are to be expended in the construction of state highways already approved by the general assembly, these bonds to be issued from time to time in such amounts and upon such terms as the general assembly may hereafter determine?"

To give in their votes in the manner provided by law, for the approval or rejection of the following-named proposition, to wit:

"PENAL AND REFORMATORY INSTITUTIONS LOAN.

Shall the general assembly be authorized and directed to provide for the issue of bonds not to exceed in amount the sum of three hundred thousand dollars, the proceeds of which bonds are to be expended in providing permanent improvements at the State Institutions located at Howard, in the town of Cranston, R. I.; these bonds to be issued from time to time in such amounts and upon such terms as the general assembly may hereafter determine?"

To consider and vote upon the following-named proposition, to wit:

"Shall a Committee be appointed, authorized and instructed, to bring the proper action at law or suit in equity, to determine the rights of the inhabitants of Middletown, in and to that peninsula extending into the Atlantic Ocean and known as Easton's Neck?

And shall the sum of Five Hundred Dollars, payable to the order of said Committee, be appropriated from the town treasury to defray the cost and expense of the litigation hereby authorized?"

To consider and vote upon the following-named question, to wit:

"Will this Town grant licenses for the sale of intoxicating liquors?"

And to consider, transact and do any and all such other incidental business —which may legally come before said meeting—for the benefit of this Town of Middletown and the good people thereof.

Witness my hand,

ALBERT L. CHASE,
Town Clerk.

ELECTION WARRANT.

STATE OF RHODE ISLAND AND PROVIDENCE PLANTATIONS.

NEWPORT, Sc. CITY OF NEWPORT.

WHEREAS TUESDAY, THE THIRD DAY OF NOVEMBER, A. D. 1908, being the Tuesday next after the first Monday in November 1908 is by the Constitution and laws of this State designated as the day for holding Ward Meetings for the Election of four Electors of President and Vice President of the United States and for the election of a Representative to represent the First District of this State in the sixty-first Congress of the United States and is also by law the day designated for holding the election for General Officers, and a Senator and four Representatives in the General Assembly of this State.

And to give in their ballots, as provided by law, on the question, "Will this City grant licenses for the sale of intoxicating liquors?"

And Whereas the General Assembly of this State at its January Session, A. D. 1908, on April 10, 1908, adopted a resolution in the words following, viz:

"Resolution Proposing Amendments to the Constitution of the State.

"Resolved, That a majority of all the members elected to each House of the General Assembly voting therefor, that the following amendments to the Constitution of the State be proposed to the qualified electors of the State, in accordance with the provisions of Article XIII of the Constitution, for their adoption, to be denominated Article XIII of Amendments:

"ARTICLE XIII.

"SECTION 1. Every bill, resolution, or vote (except such as relate to adjournment, the organization or conduct of either or both Houses of the General Assembly, and resolutions proposing amendment to the Constitution), which shall have passed both Houses of the General Assembly, shall be presented to the Governor.

"If he approves it he shall sign it, and thereupon it shall become operative; but if he does not approve it he shall return it, accompanied by his objections, in writing, to the House in which it originated, which shall enter his objections in full upon its journal and proceed to reconsider it. If after such reconsideration, three-fifths of the members present and voting in that House shall vote to pass the measure, it shall be sent, with the objections, to the other House, by which it shall likewise be reconsidered, and, if approved by three-fifths of the members present and voting in that House, it shall become operative in the same manner as if the Governor had approved it; but in such cases the votes of both Houses shall be determined by ayes and nays, and the names of the members voting for and against the measure shall be entered upon the journal of each House, respectively. If the measure shall not be returned by the Governor within six (6) days (Sundays excepted) after it shall have been presented to him, the same shall become operative unless the General Assembly, by adjournment, prevents its return, in which case it shall become operative unless transmitted by the Governor to the Secretary of State, with his disapproval, in writing, within ten days after such adjournment.

"SEC. 2. The Lieutenant Governor shall preside in the Senate and in Grand Committee. The presiding officer of the Senate and Grand Committee shall have a right to vote in case of equal division, but not otherwise.

"SEC. 3. If, by reason of death, resignation, absence, or other cause, the Lieutenant Governor is not present to preside in the Senate, the Senate shall elect one of their own members to preside during such absence or vacancy; and until such election is made by the Senate, the Secretary of State shall preside. The presiding officer of the Senate shall preside in Grand Committee and in Joint Assembly.

"SEC. 4. The House of Representatives shall never exceed one hundred members, and shall be constituted on the basis of population, always allowing one representative for a fraction exceeding half the ratio; but each town and city shall always be entitled to at least one member; and no town or city shall have more than one-fourth of the whole number of members. The General Assembly may, after any new census taken by the authority of the United States or this State, reapportion the representation in conformity with the foregoing provisions. As soon as this amendment goes into effect, the General Assembly shall divide each town and city into as many districts as it is entitled to representatives, and after each census, or as occasion may require, the General Assembly may so divide each town and city, and one representative shall be elected from each district by the qualified electors thereof. Such districts shall be as nearly equal in population and as compact in territory as possible.

"SEC. 5. This amendment shall take, in the Constitution of the State, the place of Sections 2 and 3 of Article VI 'Of the Senate,' and of Section 1 of Article V 'Of the House of Representatives,' which said sections and all other provisions of the Constitution inconsistent herewith are hereby annulled."

Attest.

CHARLES P. BENNETT,
Secretary of State.

And whereas the General Assembly of this State at its January Session A. D. 1908, on May 21, 1908, adopted a resolution in the words following, viz:

RESOLVED, that the following proposition be submitted to the people for their approval or rejection, at the general election to be held on the Tuesday next following the first Monday in November, 1908.

STATE HIGHWAY CONSTRUCTION LOAN.

Shall the general assembly be authorized and directed to provide for the issue of bonds not to exceed in amount of six hundred thousand dollars the proceeds of which bonds are to be expended in the construction of state highways already approved by the general assembly, these bonds to be issued from time to time in such amounts and upon such terms as the general assembly may hereafter determine?

And whereas the General Assembly of this State at its January Session, A. D. 1908 on May 26, 1908, adopted a resolution in the words following, viz:

RESOLVED, that the following proposition be submitted to the people, for their approval or rejection, at the general election to be held on the Tuesday next following the first Monday in November, 1908.

PENAL AND REFORMATORY INSTITUTIONS LOAN.

Shall the general assembly be authorized and directed to provide for the issue of bonds not to exceed in amount the sum of three hundred thousand dollars, the proceeds of which bonds are to be expended in providing permanent improvements at the State Institutions located at Howard, in the town of Cranston, R. I.; these bonds to be issued from time to time in such amounts and upon such terms as the general assembly may hereafter determine?

WHEREFORE the qualified electors of this city are hereby warned and notified to meet in their respective Ward Meetings on said TUESDAY THE THIRD DAY OF NOVEMBER next at half past six o'clock in the forenoon at the following named places; viz:

IN THE FIRST WARD, at the Ward Room in No. 2 Fire Station Building, Bridge Street.

IN THE SECOND WARD, at the Ward Room in No. 4 Fire Station Building, Equality Park Place.

IN THE THIRD WARD, at the Ward Room in No. 1 Fire Station Building, Mill street.

IN THE FOURTH WARD, at 29 Thames Street, in the Father Mathew Total Abstinence Benevolent Society Building.

IN THE FIFTH WARD, at Riverside Hall, Wellington Avenue, (Grace Chapel).

IN ORDER that the aforesaid Proposition of Amendment to the Constitution of the State and Proposition to issue State Bonds may be read to the electors when they are assembled before the election of Senator and Representatives shall be had.

AND to give in their ballots as provided by law, for FOUR ELECTORS OF PRESIDENT AND VICE PRESIDENT of the United States and for one REPRESENTATIVE to represent the First District of this State in the sixty-first Congress of the United States and also to give in their ballots, as provided by law for GOVERNOR, LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR, SECRETARY OF STATE, ATTORNEY GENERAL AND GENERAL TREASURER and for one SENATOR and FOUR REPRESENTATIVES from this City to the General Assembly of the State for the ensuing year AND to give in their ballots as provided by law, for the aforesaid PROPOSITIONS submitted for their approval or rejection, AND to give in their ballots, as provided by law, on the said question, "Will this City grant licenses for the sale of intoxicating liquors?"

Said Ward Meetings, according to law, will be kept open from half past six o'clock in the morning until half past six o'clock in the evening.

Witness my hand this 26th day of October, A. D. 1908.

Announcement was made this morning that the Independence party campaign will be closed with a big meeting in Brooklyn tonight and another tomorrow night in Carnegie Hall, Manhattan. MRS. ASTOR'S ILLNESS.

Her Condition Reported to Be Critical and Her Family Assembling in New York.

Mrs. William Astor, who has been in poor health for several months at her residence in New York, is now reported to be critically ill. Dr. Austin Flint issued a bulletin Thursday night saying that Mrs. Astor suffered a recurrence of an old heart trouble about four weeks ago. Since then she has had several attacks, but he said she was resting quietly. Mrs. Astor is nearly 78 years old.

The various members of Mrs. Astor's family are assembling in New York in order to be with her. Colonel John Jacob Astor has left his country place on the Hudson and is in that city. Mrs. Orme Wilson, Mrs. Astor's daughter, has closed her country place and returned to New York, and Mrs. George Ogilvie Haig, also a daughter, is hurrying from her home in London. Mr. and Mrs. J. Laurens Van Alen closed their Newport residence today and went to New York.

Dr. Flint stated today that Mrs. Astor passed a fairly comfortable night and her condition today is unchanged. Reports that she is dying are said to be incorrect. It was the belief at her home that she might live for an indefinite period, but her death at any moment would not be unexpected.

LICENSE PLEA DENIED.

Supreme Court Reiterates Decision for Annual Submission; Reargument Not Allowed

The supreme court handed down a rescript last evening, denying the petitioner's motion for re-argument in the case brought by Lewis Ruhland, a Cranston liquor dealer, for a writ of certiorari to review the action of Town Clerk Daniel D. Waterman of that town in certifying to Secretary of State Bennett that a sufficient number of qualified voters had requested the placing of the license issue on the ballots to insure its being voted upon.

In a rescript published last week the court held that the provision in the statute requiring a certain percentage of voters to petition the town clerk in order to have the license question voted upon was void. It was also held that the portion of the statute requiring a vote to be taken annually was clear and valid. In the rescript given out last evening the court says:

"The only new suggestion in the petitioner's motion for re-argument is contained in the third ground, as follows:

"'Chapter 9, section 12, General Laws, prescribes notice of meetings by warrant of town and city clerks.

"'The proviso in section 4 of chapter 102 requires the city and town clerks to insert the proposition in their warrants for elective meetings.

"'This is the only provision of law to be found for inserting the proposition in the warrants.

"'If the proviso is cut out of said section 4, then no provision of law remains for inserting this proposition in the warrants for elective meetings,' whereupon he argues:

"'The proviso is inseverable from the main section for the reason that it carried within its terms the method of notifying the electors of the vote upon the question.

"'Section 22 of chapter 11, General Laws, amended by section 2 of chapter 1,229, Public Laws, provides for placing this question upon the ballots, but no positive law appears anywhere for notifying the electors of the vote to be taken except in this expunged proviso.'"

The argument concludes with the statement that the question cannot be legally voted upon because it cannot be legally inserted in the warrant for the meeting.

The court says:

"The argument is not convincing. General Laws, chapter 37, section 8, provides:" Then follow the quotation of the section providing for the issuing of the warrant for town meetings by town clerks. The court holds that this covers the point and concludes:

"Even if there was no statute directing that notice should be given, we do not think such omission would be fatal. The legislature having directed a vote on the question to be taken 'at each election of general officers,' it becomes the duty of town and city clerks to give notice thereof in the warrants calling the meetings for that purpose. The motion for reargument is denied."

MRS. WASHBURN MAYNARD.

Death of Wife of Rear Admiral Occurs at Her Home in Narragansett.

News was received today of the death, at her home in Narragansett, of Mrs. Maynard, wife of Rear Admiral Washburn Maynard, U. S. N. Mrs. Maynard had been ill of nervous prostration for some time and the news of her death was not entirely unexpected, although it was not believed that the end was so near.

Mrs. Maynard was Miss Bessie Brooks, a daughter of the late Rev. Charles T. and Harriet Hazard Brooks and a sister of Mrs. Harriet L. Stevens. When a young woman she was popular among a large circle in Newport and retained her charming personality throughout her life. Since the retirement of Admiral Maynard they had spent a large portion of the time in and near Newport, having quite recently made their home in the Hazard homestead in Narragansett, on the road from Saunderstown to Narragansett Pier, where many generations of Hazards have lived.

Through her mother Mrs. Maynard was related to the Robinsons, Wantons and Hazards, who have been prominent residents of Narragansett and Newport and closely identified with the stirring events of Rhode Island history in the past two centuries.

ST. MARY'S BASKET BALL TEAM WINS

The St. Mary's basket ball team opened its season last evening at the Naval Training Station, and won from the Station's first team by a score of 29 to 22. The game was a fairly good one for so early in the season and was exciting from start to finish. The heavy naval team, with the small hall at the Station, made a close rival for the Junior champions. The game was witnessed by about 400, the St. Mary's team taking over 100 rooters. Manager Harrington is filling his schedule of games with the best teams available in Newport.

THE TAFT BANNER DOWN.

Some Think It an Omen, But Any Other Would Probably Have Shared Its Fate.

The Taft banner is down. Some think it looks as though it were a premonition of the future, a visible sign of what is going to happen next Tuesday, when Taft's chances will yield to the wild storm of wind and rain which Bryan's supporters will shower on him. Then, again, perhaps if there had been a Bryan banner up it would have shared the same fate and both candidates would have been in the air, gone up in a balloon, and the Prohibition candidate, the real rain water candidate whose weather was furnished to Newport last night, might then be considered the winner. However, the Taft banner is down. The Bryan banner is not, because it was not up to come down.

Last evening it was noticed that one of the guy lines of the banner was hanging very low. It is possible that some one attempted to secure it during the night and that the shrinking of the line in the rain caused too great strain to be put on the other gear. Whatever may have been the cause, when the wind came the whole thing carried away—"hook, line and sinker," even to the wire cable on which it was hung over the street. The end on the Mercury building let go and things bunched up on the electric wires in front of the Southwick building. There was but one thing to be done when this condition of affairs became known, and that was to send workmen to take in the display, which was done. Repairs will probably be made that it may swing again and show that the downfall of the banner does not mean that the party is out of the running.

THIS EVENING'S RALLIES.

Democrats and Independence League Candidates to Present State Issues.

The Democrats will have their first and only local rally of the Presidential campaign tonight, and have secured an array of prominent speakers. Congressman Granger, Governor Higgins, Olney Arnold, candidate for governor, and Mr. P. H. Quinn will present state issues. Governor Higgins has recently returned from a campaign tour in the West and has been much sought after for rallies in the state, and the Newport Democrats feel especially fortunate at being able to secure him. Mr. Arnold will make his first appearance before a Newport audience and there is much interest in Granger is no stranger here and can always be counted upon to speak interestingly of the issues. Mr. Quinn is also well known.

Newport will also have the opportunity this evening of hearing another of the candidates for governor, at the Independence League meeting. In addition to Mr. Albert E. Mowry, the gubernatorial candidate, there is promised the opportunity of hearing the candidates on that ticket for attorney-general and secretary of state, Julius T. Auerbach of Boston, a prominent worker in the league, and others.

RAIN AND WIND

It rained hard last night and continued to come down without showing any signs of let-up—only signs of let-down—until it was time for none but the early watch of the police to be out. It was still raining this morning, though not so hard. The wind shifted from northeast to northwest about noon and the sun came out and it was pleasant, though windy. The wind is stiffer than one would think and a tree is down on the Wilbur place at Mill and Spring streets, and one at the Sands place on Catherine street. The wind was strong enough to keep the Block Island steamer at the island until 1 o'clock this afternoon, and all the fishing boats at their moorings.

According to the Water Works rain gauge, 1.31 inches of rain fell from 6 o'clock yesterday until 6 this morning. With the other rainfall which Newport has had since the drought was broken, a short time since, there has been a total up to 6 this morning, of 3.04 inches.

A HALLOWE'EN PARTY.

Last evening a large Hallowe'en party was given in honor of Mr. John Woods at his home on Thames street. The decorations consisted of "Jack lanterns," "pumpkins" and that sort of thing, making a novel scene. Vocal and instrumental music and recitations were given by several present. Hallowe'en games were played and there was dancing, Hodgson's orchestra furnishing the music and J. Fagan the prompting. Messrs. Sullivan, Woods, Shehan and Mullaly gave several mandolin guitar banjo and violin selections, and piano selections were rendered by Misses Shea, Gillis, Quinn, Brennan and Pahlow. At midnight the gathering sat down to supper, the table decorations being pink and white chrysanthemums. At its conclusion dancing was resumed which included several of the "old-fashioned" style and a cotillon, led by Miss L. Riley and Mr. H. Sullivan, the favors being pretty. Mrs. Fagan assisted in receiving and entertaining the guests.

11—Top prices were registered for the active stocks in the first few minutes of business, the market thereafter becoming dull and sagging, St. Paul losing its advance. A number of less active stocks were strong. Delaware & Hudson, Rock Island preferred, New Haven, American Cotton Oil and General Electric gained a point, and Consolidated Gas 2.

Noon—Money on call, steady, at 1½ per cent; prime mercantile paper, 4 to 4½ per cent. Union Pacific was lifted aggressively 2½. Southern Pacific rose a point. The general market responded moderately, but was active and broad. Later, when Northern Pacific yielded its advance, the tone became easier. Bonds were firm.

LESSON TAUGHT BY MR KIMBER.

Interesting Talk on the Sunday School Given Before Teachers' Union, by Rev. Mr. Geisler.

The weekly meeting of the Newport Graded Union for Sunday School Teachers Thursday afternoon was in charge of Mrs John S Kimber, who also conducted the devotional exercises. After the reading of Psalm XXXIV and prayer by Mrs. Kimber, Rev. John S. Kimber taught the lesson—II Samuel 15—"The Rebellion of Absalom." In opening Mr Kimber urged the teachers to familiarize their pupils with the general trend of the Bible by taking up the connecting links between the lessons. As results of David's sin, sin in kind was visited back in David's household. Mr Kimber considered our responsibility for the use of our talents and the necessity of loyalty and humility. From the rebellion of Absalom were drawn the lessons of faithfulness to families, wisdom in the rearing of children and duties to parents.

The talk of the afternoon on "The Sunday School, the Church Home of Childhood" was then given by Rev. W. F. Geisler, who spoke of his love for the Sunday School as an organization, and as an evangelizing and educational agency. The Sunday School has been regarded as the church home of childhood by the children and by their parents. We have our cradle rolls and kindergartens and through the opening and closing devotional exercises have spoken to the religious nature of the child. As a result we find that parents think Sunday School attendance is enough. After a certain age, however, the children leave the Sunday school and the church, not more than one in seven or eight Sunday School scholars coming into the church.

Mr. Geisler then spoke of the church, not the Sunday School, as being the rightful church home of the child who should contribute to the Christian character of the church with which the Sunday School is connected. As soon as possible children should be brought to church as a sort of habit, the power and influence of the church being higher than the power and influence of any other organization. Concluding his interesting paper Mr. Geisler spoke of the close connection in England between the Sunday School and the church.

PARADE POSTPONED.

The Crowds and Some of the Participants Ready, But the Rain Too Much for Them.

The moisture last evening was too great for even a political parade and by 7 o'clock the Republican demonstration had been postponed until tonight. There were not a few who reported at headquarters prepared to parade; for, as one of the enthusiasts explained, orders were orders and he had complied with them by being on hand. There were others who had no thought of parading when they found that it was to be a little moist, and when the downpour came they did not need to change their minds. The Rough Riders who were ready were perhaps not more numerous than the foot troops, but they were more conspicuous, and before they had taken their steeds back to shelter most of them must have been pretty wet.

Even the drizzling rain early in the evening assured a failure of the spectacular part of the parade, for Chinese lanterns would have lasted but a brief period. The crowds seemed to anticipate the parade, for they were on the streets early, seeking shelter in doorways and alcoves, but as the moisture increased they gave up all ideas of seeing a procession and sought more comfortable quarters.

There was one parade which most of the people did not seem to think of, and its passage caused a little amusement for those who saw it, because of its strange composition for a political parade. There was the Lincoln Band, a wagon carrying an Anti-Taft banner, and three or four closed carriages, which probably contained notables, but they were out of sight as well as out of the rain. This was the limit of last night's parading.

STEAMERS TIED UP.

General, in a Pocket Behind the City of Newport, in Turn Blocks the Newport.

There was a general tie-up at Commercial wharf this morning. Steamer City of Newport is now obliged to occupy the head of the wharf for landing, because of the construction of the coal wharf, and being much longer than the head overlaps considerably. When the General made her landing the Wickford Line boat found herself pocketed, with the wind strong from the northward and the overhanging City of Newport preventing her sliding out past the head of the wharf. The pocketing of the General in turn completely blocked ferryboat Newport in her slip, and so this line to Jamestown will discontinue its service one day earlier than had been planned.

Since the readjustment of landings at Commercial wharf the Wickford Line officials have complained that they could foresee that they would be seriously hampered at times, and one of these times seems to have arrived. While the receivers have announced no action as yet, there is reason to believe that they will cut down their expenses somewhat on dock hire, as at present they are paying $1,200 a year for the present accommodations. A landing at Long wharf or at City wharf has been suggested. The Providence steamers have been [illegible] also during the past summer, as they have had only the head of the wharf to land at, and the boats tie up two abreast, with the passengers of the outside boat landing across the inner one.

For a generation or two Commercial wharf has been a prominent transportation terminal, and when a few years ago there was talk of concentrating all lines at Long and City wharves there was quite a protest, because it was alleged that many of the travelling public had become accustomed to Commercial wharf. With the changes which are taking place from time to time in transportation circles and different conditions arising, it is recalled that the street railway people some time ago withdrew from the wharf in the belief that the palmy days there had passed.

ST. GEORGE'S NEW RECTOR.

Rev. George Vernon Dickey Given Informal Farewell at St. Ann's on the Heights, Brooklyn.

Rev. George Vernon Dickey, who will begin his labors next Sunday as rector of St. George's Church, to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Rev. Nassau S. Stephens last summer, has been at St. Ann's on the Heights, Brooklyn, for a year, and has been popular, having qualities as a pastor and preacher which have caused him to be greatly appreciated. He is a graduate of Princeton and previous to going to St. Ann's took up the new mission of St. Lydia's on Crystal Street, which has now become a flourishing church. He was at one time assistant to Rev. Dr. John F. Carson.

Last evening, in connection with a memorial dedication service, an informal farewell was given to Mr. Dickey at St. Lydia's mission, a large congregation being present. The memorial was a massive brass alms basin of beautiful design, presented by Mrs. Stephenson, a member of the parish in memory of her husband, John Joseph Stephenson. Rev. Mr. Dickey had prepared a special form of dedication, with the bishop's approval. His dedication sermon was a strong one and touched briefly, at its end, on his leaving the diocese, and also urged on the parish the need for Christian unity and unselfishness in building up a new church. The chancel was decorated with white chrysanthemums and autumn leaves. At the conclusion of the service an informal reception was tendered to Rev. Mr. Dickey.

Rev. George Vernon Dickey.

AN ADDRESS ON "DEMOCRACY."

Rabbi Fleischer of Boston Speaks Under Auspices of Current Topics Club.

Despite the storm there was a fair-sized audience in Trinity guild hall last evening. Rabbi Charles Fleischer of Boston speaking under the auspices of the Current Topics Club on "Democracy." After a pleasing introduction by Miss Elizabeth B. Peckham, president of the club, the speaker said he would not give a political harangue, but would take up the philosophic aspect of democracy, to which ideal there is no suggestion of adherence in the present campaign. There is disease implied in our being consecrated to democracy, which transcends not simply parties, but peoples.

Democracy is more than political. It is an elemental, universal, social principle, the organization of society on the basis of respect for the individual human unit.

Democracy is based, first, on faith in human nature, second, on respect for the human individual; third, on faith in human progress, and fourth, on such organization of society as will give to each individual the fullest opportunity for self-expression and self-development and to society the right to demand the consecration of this developing and growing self to humanity. Friendship is always a beautiful possibility, no fact in nature being as fine as human nature. The would-be democrat should try to be an optimist and believe in humanity.

We owe it to our ancestry to respect the individual human unit, to treat others well because of the essential equality of human kind. Democratic idealism is an appeal for the mental attitude which shall body forth a certain spiritual conception absolutely necessary in the building of self-democracy. This ideal will never be realized until all are democratic and free from group prejudices. We are all human units and we should not attempt to justify or explain our prejudices, since by so doing we aid and abet war, for example. The speaker here referred to our silly prejudice against Japan which should be dissipated by the royal treatment accorded our navy there.

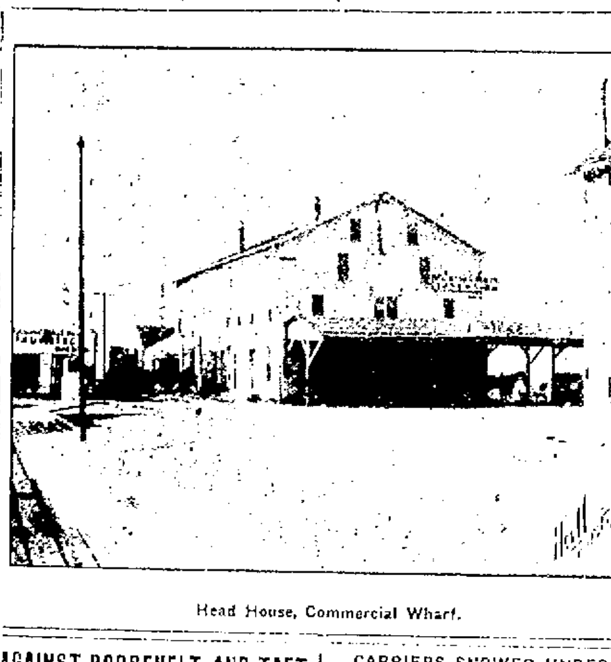

We are living in the most wonderful age in the history of the world. Although Socrates was probably the wisest man that ever lived, the age of Pericles the most wonderful period of human phenomena, Phidias and Praxiteles the greatest artists the world has ever known and Jesus Christ the best man that ever lived, today wisdom, art and goodness have become democratized and generalized.

The individual has a right to demand of society and society has a right to demand of the individual. Rabbi Fleischer at this point took up the question of divorce which is becoming more prevalent the world over. Democracy has emancipated women in a dignified sense, but today women are not respected as they should be nor do they respect themselves as they should. When a man of the male aristocracy marries a "new" woman the results are either the spiritual death of the woman, a cat and dog existence, or the divorce court, which is the least of the evils. In the future there will be not more divorces but fewer incompatible marriages.

The labor situation was also discussed. The laboring man will be satisfied only in the day of industrial democracy and, in fact, every existing social institution will have to come before society and answer the democratic challenge.

Altruism must also be developed in us. Democracy will triumph in the end, if not through us, through some other people. If America is to democratize the world the self-conquest of each of us democratically and the remaking of ourselves spiritually are necessary. If we do become the embodying force of democratic idealism, we shall be the greatest missionary people the world has ever known.

Rabbi Fleischer is an interesting speaker and at the end of his extensive talk answered several questions.

Head House, Commercial Wharf.

AGAINST ROOSEVELT AND TAFT.

tion, to decide whether we will have a government under the constitution or the government of the big stick, whether we are to have a government of the people, by the people and for the people or a continuance of the reign of King Theodore and Prince William. During the administration of Roosevelt the White House, sacred to the tread of Abraham Lincoln and William McKinley, has become the cesspool of political scandal.

The speaker then proceeded further to denounce President Roosevelt, calling him the friend of William R. Hearst, a "murderer" of a man who has disgraced the negro soldiers, the man who has cast a shadow over the business prosperity of this country, over the workingmen and over the colored race. He referred to Senator Joseph B. Foraker as one of the most noble champions of manhood rights. Taft has never done anything to repudiate the Roosevelt policies. He never makes a speech which has not first been supervised by Roosevelt. A vote for Taft means a vote for Roosevelt, and if Taft is elected Roosevelt will still be President. If the negro has ever owed the Republican party a debt of gratitude, that debt has been paid long ago by the subservient devotion to that party. In conclusion he urged his hearers to vote the entire Democratic ticket.

Dr. Wheatland, when introduced, was enthusiastically received. He said that, when once he had become convinced that a certain thing is right, he always went that way. He had been studying the situation for some time and was now fully convinced that the negro race will find its salvation not in the Republican but in the Democratic party. The late George T. Downing, 20 years ago, preached the same doctrine which is being advocated by the New England Suffrage League today. Mr. Downing was 20 years ahead of his time.

Dr. Wheatland said he was glad the opportunity had come for him to vote for the Democratic ticket. The Republican party is gradually unloading the negro, and in a short time the negro, continuing to vote as he has, will find that he has been unloaded, and the Democratic party will then do nothing for him. Now is the time to throw off the shackles. It is not because I desire the office that I am a candidate, but because I feel that I have an opportunity to stand up and do something for my people. In conclusion Dr. Wheatland urged the colored people to stand firmly for their rights.

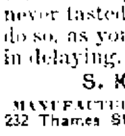

Bishop Alexander Walter of New York spoke along the same line as the others. He said he thought the wisest thing which had been done during the present campaign was the nomination of Dr. Wheatland and by the Democrats of Newport. He, the bishop, was in the campaign because he believed the time had come when he who has any interest in his race must go out and fight. The Republican party of today is undoing what its old heroes have done. The party has done nothing to prevent the disfranchisement of the negroes in the south, and the speaker felt sure that if Bryan is elected he will do everything he can for the interest of the negro. The time has come when the negro should help the Democratic party; all the negro desires is a square deal and that he believed can be best secured from the Democrats.

Mrs. Cravat Simpson of Boston was next called upon and spoke at considerable length, claiming that the Republican party has done nothing towards the enforcement of the thirteenth, fourteenth and fifteenth amendments to the constitution; the fact, has done nothing but lie to the negro. She spoke of the defeat of the Sumner civil rights bill, the withdrawing of federal troops from the South, the disfranchisement of the negro, Jim Crow car laws and the dismissal of colored soldiers, all of which she claimed were due to the Republican party. She thought the negroes had been tied to the Republican party too long and that it is time for them to throw off the shackles.

Ex-Mayor P. J. Boyle was called upon and spoke briefly, and the meeting closed.

CARRIERS SNOWED UNDER.

Deliveries Delayed by Mass of License Literature Sent Out by the Brewers.

A sort of snowstorm struck the city this morning, and as a result the letter carriers were later than usual in making their deliveries. It was not just such a storm as they have been having in the West, tying up the train service, but a superabundance of white envelopes, known in the postoffice as political matter. Donations of this sort have been putting in an appearance for the past ten days, quite disarranging the regular deliveries, because the politicians in addressing their arguments let no guilty man escape and men receive mail on these occasions who do not at any other time of the year.

About all the parties have now had their say privately to the voters, if the voters would listen. This morning the brewers sent out in sealed envelopes their argument why the voters should cast their ballots for license. The carriers have circulated enough material during the past week to keep most people off the streets nights until election time, if they give it mature consideration. However, many apparently do not take the trouble to read it, though the Postoffice Department demands prompt delivery of all this sort of mail.
